ARRIVAL OF THE AMERICA'S MAILS

DETAILS OF THE WAR NEWS.

Position and Movements of the Hostile Forces.

Austrian Forced Loan in Lombardy.

Threatening Attitude of Russia.

England Recommends Neutrality to Germany.

DETAILS OF THE FRENCH LOAN.

EXECUTION OF TANTIA TOPEE.

The Royal Mail Steamship America arrived in Boston about noon yesterday, and her mails reached this City after midnight. The details of foreign news by this arrival are varied and interesting, and indicate an increased strength of feeling on the Continent of Europe and in England in favor of neutrality in the Italian war.

NOTES OF THE WAR.

The Latest Telegrams.

TURIN, Friday, May 20.

[OFFICIAL BULLETIN.]

Twelve thousand Austrians advanced, to-day, from Stradella towards Casteggio, where the streets had been barricaded since Wednesday, and three unimportant attacks repulsed.

Two strong columns of our troops marched to-day to meet the Austrians.

Austrian prisoners have been already brought to Voghera, but all details of a fight are as yet wanting.

It is asserted that the Emperor of Austria arrived yesterday at Milan, and that he departed directly for Pavia, accompanied by General Hess.

TRANSPORT OF AUSTRIAN TROOPS.

DRESDEN, Friday.—A fortnightly transport of Austrian troops to the federal fortresses begins on Monday next, with the first dispatch of 31,000 infantry, 4 regiments of cavalry, 3,000 horses, and 20 pieces of cannon.

Miscellaneous War News.

From the Moniteur, May 19.

ALESSANDRIA, Wednesday, May 18, 1859.

The organization of the army is going on actively. The repair of the damage done by the enemy to the bridges, roads and railways is approaching completion. The Austrians continue their exactions. The population of Vercelli are filled with consternation, and quite out of condition to satisfy such demands. During the night of the 17th, a body of Austrians, 100 strong, escaladed the bridge of Valenza through a trench, and made a fruitless attempt to take a position, guarded by a small detachment of eight men. This morning the enemy opened a somewhat vigorous cannonade, which lasted from 3 till 6 o'clock, on the boats moored on the right bank of the Po, near the railroad from Alessandria to Mortara. Our side made no response to the cannonade, the result of which proved to be insignificant.

The Paris Pays says: "All those who live in the neighborhood of mountains know that the middle and the end of May is the epoch of heavy inundations. The sun melts the snow, and if rain supervenes, floods are produced in a few hours. The delay which military operations are now suffering is attributable to this cause. The theatre of war is situated in a part of Europe where rivers having their source in lofty mountains are very numerous. The lost time is, however, usefully employed in completing the arming and victualling of our troops, and when once operations commence the result will be only the more speedy."

The following [illegible] was [illegible] on the evening of the [illegible]:

"[illegible] of the Austrians from Stradella [illegible] Voghera, and requisitions for large boats on the [illegible], no news of any kind has come to our knowledge. In Bulletin No. 31, (May 14,) where it is said that the Carbineers of Bobbio had transferred themselves to Tortona, it should have been to 'Ottone.'"

The Piedmontese Gazette of the next evening contained a notice to the effect that [illegible] which I came were two squadrons of French cavalry, which had crossed Mont Cenis. Marshal CANROBERT has his head quarters here. General NIEL left for Valenza the day before yesterday.

There is a continual movement here. The King has visited Alessandria three times within the last few days. He left the other night, only accompanied by two aides-de-camp. Marshal CANROBERT is continually visiting him at his head quarters at San Salvatore.

I need not describe the fortifications. All fortresses bear a resemblance to each other. The only change recently made is a curtain which connects all the detached forts with each other and with the Citadel. Some of the streets have been closed at each end and covered in with canvas to make stables for the cavalry. Huts and tents have been erected on every available spot. The officers are quartered in private houses; all the public establishments have been turned into barracks or storehouses. The Cathedral has been made the pharmacy of the army. The streets swarm with uniforms.

As yet not a gun has been fired from the walls of Alessandria, but we have heard firing in the direction of Valenza.

No civilian is allowed to remain here more than 24 hours without permission. The railway between Alessandria and Casale is chiefly occupied by the transport of troops.

Great preparations are being made to receive the Emperor.

A court-martial is now sitting on the Chevalier PASSGA DI CASALE, accused of having given information to the Austrians. He is a cousin of the Minister CADORNA. An Austrian officer was arrested last night in one of the hotels as a spy. An actress who had known him at Milan recognized him and pointed him out to the authorities, while he was conversing with a French officer.

I have just visited the Citadel. I need not say that I am bound not to give any information respecting it. The King has just passed through with his staff, coming from Genoa.

The Paris Moniteur of the 16th May contained the following telegram from Alessandria, dated Monday:

"The rain has fallen incessantly during the last two days, but the bad weather has not prevented our troops from taking the positions assigned to them by the Emperor, whose headquarters still continue to be at Alessandria."

The following bulletins confirm the impression that the Austrians are retreating:

TURIN, May 13—Evening.

The enemy increases at Castel San Giovanni, on the road from Piacenza to Stradella. His advanced posts are near to the Bardonezza Torrent. He is fortifying the bridge of the Stella with six little forts; his advanced posts on that point are at San Cipriano and at the Giesolo. Two bridges, to assure the retreat, are constructed at Vigevano, and near to the Motta Visconti. From the Lomellini, troops and artillery are returning towards Pavia. Temporary fortifications are being made at the Gravellone, at Codalunga, at the Portighetto, and at the Batella. At 11 o'clock to-day, a reconnoissance, in force, was made by our troops to the meadows of Stra. The enemy did not reply to our cannonade, whereupon our troops returned to their position.

MAY 14—Morning.

The Austrians have occupied Bobbio. Some of their patrols have been to Broni, Bressano, Argine and Casteggio. Everywhere they have made heavy requisitions. No novelty on the side of Vercelli.

It is rumored that four new marshals of France will soon be nominated, viz.: Prince NAPOLEON, and Generals DE MACMAHON, NIEL and REGNAULT DE SAINT JEAN D'ANGELY.

During the absence of the Emperor of Austria with his army, the Archduke Regnier is to be intrusted with the administration of affairs.

The Swiss fortifications on the frontiers of Lombardy, at Bellinzona and Luziensteig, are at present receiving additions, and it is intended also to strengthen still further those of St. Maurice, in the Valais.

The Governor of the Navy Department at Trieste announces that the ports of Chioggia, Lido and Malamocco, near Venice, are to be barred up during the war, and that merchant-vessels cannot, therefore, be allowed to enter at night. In order to enter by day they must take on board one of the pilots specially appointed by the Government.

The Fremdenblatt announces that the Austrian army now counts the following German princes among its generals: The Landgrave FERDINAND, of Hesse-Homburg; ALEXANDER, Prince of Wurtemberg; ALEXANDER, Prince of Hesse; the Prince of Schleswig-Holstein; and the Princes GUSTAVUS and WILLIAM, of Hohenlohe-Langenburg. Prince NICHOLAS, of Nassau, has arrived in Vienna on his way to join the Austrian army in Italy. Prince WILLIAM, of Schaumberg-Lippe, son of the reigning prince, has just entered the Austrian service.

The Débats observes that "the future conduct of Prussia will depend on the definitive meaning which she may attach to her favorite expressions—the security of Germany and [illegible] of European [illegible]. It will only be when our victorious army has reached the plains of Lombardy that Prussia will declare by her conduct the exact meaning she attaches to the expressions which she now employs to define her policy, and we hope that her conduct will then be in accord with the interests of our country. Hitherto, it is impossible not to see that she uses language intentionally obscure, and that while constantly speaking of the law of nations and the European equili-[illegible] tle made illustrious by the First Consul, one arch had been erected, adorned with flowers and flags, on the freize of which the motto, "All' erede del Vincitore di Marengo," (to the descendant of the conqueror of Marengo,) had been conspicuously emblazoned in tricolor letters. VICTOR EMANUEL, riding on a fine bay charger, went to meet the Emperor, and took him to the Royal Palace, splendidly decorated for the occasion. The appearance of the King was really magnificent; his martial bearing, and his bold, firm aspect, gave evidence of the noble race of warriors from whom he springs. It would have been a subject worthy of MAROCHETTI. My pen is not powerful enough to describe the busy and singular appearance of the town. Groups of Zouaves, bands of hussars and lancers, together with the beautiful women and girls of the city, singing and embracing each other with that [illegible] which forms one of the prominent features of the present movement. Ladies of rank walking arm-in-arm with the young officers of the Imperial Guard; priests and soldiers talking together, eating together, drinking and singing together. The enthusiasm was not d'ordre, but it was the real manifestation of a powerful and true-felt feeling. This manifestation had no limit when the first order of the day addressed by the Emperor to the army was posted at the corners of the streets, and over the walls of public buildings.

The activity which prevails in the French and Sardinian camps leave no doubt that the hour of the great struggle is near at hand. General GYULAI had perhaps caught scent of the intentions of his adversaries, for, since yesterday, he has hastily abandoned the position of Bobbio, which he had caused to be explored by a column of the army he commands. By the intended occupation of this mountain town he had apparently the object of menacing the right of the allied army. Descending on the valley of the Staffora he could have attacked the extreme right of the French, whilst with a bold march through the opening on his left, he could have threatened Marshal BARAGUAY D'HILLIERS, who is still posted on the main road from Novi to Genoa with the first corps d'armee. On the other hand, with the occupation of Bobbio, he could equally have descended into the valley of the Trebbia if his centre of Piacenza had been menaced. The movement of the Austrian General-in-Chief on Bobbio was almost simultaneous with the advance on Stradella, Broni, Carteggio, Casatisma, Argine and Mezzana Corti.

A glance at the map will show you that the three first-mentioned villages are in direct communication with the entrenched Austrian camp of Piacenza, and the last with Gravellona and Pavia. The camp of Piacenza has been manned with 200 heavy guns, and it is there that General GYULAI awaits the first attack of the united forces. These of course, are all mere conjectures; but, as I told you, people here of mark and livelihood share almost to a man this opinion. At the extreme left of the Piedmontese lines nothing of note has occurred since my last letter. A second reconnaissance en force has been made by the Sardinians on the Vercelli road, marching as far as the Cascine di Stra. The Austrians did not stir from their positions, nor did they answer to the vigorous fire of their brave assailants.

The enlistment of volunteers is going on with great activity both a Turin and Acqui. In this last town a regiment called Cacciatori degli Apennini is ready to join the active army. It is commanded by Signor BOLDONI, a distinguished Neapolitan colonel. This regiment is composed of four battalions under the orders of Majors Duke SAN DONATO, MASHERU, GHERTOFF, and ZANARDI. The first of these gentlemen is an intimate friend of Commendatore RATAZZI, formerly home secretary in CAVOUR's administration, and one of the leading men of the Chamber. In order to give you a full idea of the readiness of Lombardo and Venetian gentlemen to join the National army, I shall quote a few pregnant instances. In one of the cavalry regiments there are three Marquises VISCONTI; in the Cacciatori della Alpi four Counts DELLA RIVA, and three Counts ARRIVABENE in another regiment. Dukes and princes are not wanting, and the noblest and most ancient families of Venice, Florence, Cremona, Brescia, Bergamo and Padua are represented in the army.

It is my painful duty to dwell again on the atrocities which mark the occupation of the Austrian army in Piedmont. I have seen a poor fellow who, together with twenty of his countrymen, has been wounded by Piedmontese bullets under the following circumstances: An Austrian colonel was ordered by General ZOBEL to make a reconnaissance near Tortona. He was instructed to get hold of some twenty Piedmontese peasants, and make them march in front of his columns in order to screen his movements. Threatened by the enemy the Piedmontese were in the painful position of opening their fire against the poor fellows, who fell uttering the cry of "Bravi, Viva l'Italia." This fact, which I am able to state on a very good authority, because I saw one of the victims myself, speaks volumes, and needs no comment. English people shall judge.

As the mail is closing, I have only time to add a piece of news which has caused a great surprise in the political circles of Turin. Lord MALMESBURY has directed Sir JAMES HUDSON to signify to Count CAVOUR that it is the wish of Her Majesty's Government that the term for laying the embargo on Austrian ships should be prolonged. The reason given to justify this Austrian demand is that the captains, who are not aware of the actual state of war, would be let into a trap. His lordship must have forgotten that Piedmont is carrying on a serious and decisive war against Austria, and that a sentimental policy would be quite out of place. On the other hand, history tells us that during our wars against France and Russia it was altogether a different principle which prevailed at Downing-street. If I am rightly informed, the suggestion of Lord MALMESBURY has been met by a flat and peremptory refusal.

England Recommends Neutrality to Germany.

The Brussels Indépendance, of Wednesday, contain the following communication from Frankfort:

"The English Government has addressed circulars to its representatives at the small German courts, and at Frankfort, in which it discountenances all aggressive acts against France. This dispatch was read to Count Platen, at Hanover, by the English Envoy, and the latter being accredited also to Brunswick, went to that city to bring the circular to the knowledge of the ducal government. At Hamburg, Mr. HODGES, the chargé d'affaires, communicated the circular to the Senate. Here at Frankfort the British Envoy to the Diet, Mr. MALLET, has made known this last act of his Government to several German Envoys. This step is regarded as another proof that England will observe neutrality as long as possible; but it shows, on the other hand, that this neutrality will not be purely passive, and that England is determined to maintain her position as a great Power. I may mention that she has provisionally made some reserves at Paris on the subject of the imperial manifesto of the 3d, to the effect that her abstention is not to be interpreted as a complete acquiescence in the views and projects which that manifesto appears to indicate."

The Neutral Attitude of Prussia Defended.

From the Cologne Gazette.

We have been continually condemned to read, in different journals, a series of blind attacks upon Prussia; they persist in accusing her of waiting too long before mobilizing her army, and of refusing to place a corps of observation on the Rhine, and to march against the detested enemy of the German nation. We are still compelled to read and hear these absurd vaporings, although the prudent and reflecting policy of Prussia has been acknowledged on several occasions to be the only one that rational people can approve. It appears, nevertheless, that this approbation has not been given in terms sufficiently distinct and simple for a large number of our brothers in the south of Germany, whose prejudices render them blind. For this reason we now explain once more, in clear terms, the principles that have guided Prussia hitherto in the calm and prudent tenor of her way.

1. Because the cause defended by Austria in Italy cannot inspire her with any sympathy.

2. Because Austria, disregarding the mediation and warnings of Prussia, has assumed the offensive at the moment when least expected.

3. Because Prussia, as a Federal State, in virtue of the forty-sixth article in the Federal Treaty, is not obliged to assist another State of the Germanic Confederation in a war undertaken by that State for its extra-federal possessions, unless there be danger for the Confederation itself.

4. Because no enemy has yet made any threatening demonstration in the French possessions bounding the German countries of the Rhine.

5. Because, if Germany were to deem a corps of observation necessary on the Rhine, France, on her side, would station a similar one, and the entire war might easily be diverted without necessity upon Germany.

6. Because, moreover, an offensive movement of the German troops upon the Rhine against France, instead of shaking the Napoleonic dynasty, dangerous to the peace of Europe, would consolidate it and render it national, since this mode of proceeding would provoke a similar one from Russia, in the east of Germany, against the Austrian and Prussian provinces, and so the war might easily become European.

7. Because Prussia has nevertheless long been quietly arming, and at this very moment has ordered its nine army corps to be placed on a war footing in the most extended sense of the term; because she has made a like proposition to the Diet for all the federal States, so that they all may be ready to march and take the field in case the territory of the Confederation should be menaced on any side whatever, and thus to repel without delay any enemy desirous of seizing the Rhenish frontiers.

8. Because, in short, Prussia is wont, when enterprises so decisive and of such importance are at issue, to have due regard to the good or evil consequences likely to result therefrom, and not lightly and unnecessarily to impose sacrifices; because, on the contrary, when real German interests are at stake, she is always ready to defend them, not merely with vain sterile words, but with her whole forces brought into action, all the sacrifices being imposed upon herself. Such are, in a few words, the chief motives that have hitherto determined Prussia's line of conduct; these motives, clear to every unprejudiced person, will be recognized as just by all reasonable men.

Russia and Austria.

The Russian forces in the provinces bordering on the Austrian Empire are gradually assuming formidable proportions. Our correspondent at St. Petersburgh has already informed us that the Third and Fourth corps d'armée, together 70,000 strong, had been put in a state of readiness; and, subsequently, that the Fifth Division, occupying Bessarabia, and consisting of 26,000 men, had been treated in a similar way. He now informs us that further orders have been issued to the First Division, occupying Lithuania, and the Second, stationed in Poland, desiring them to hold themselves in readiness for any emergency. This information, the authenticity of which we are in a position to guarantee, confirms at the same time that it corrects a telegram published two days ago by the Russian journal, the Nord, and dated from Berlin. According to this dispatch, the order for mobilization was issued to all the divisions from the 1st to the 6th. This is inaccurate, since the 3d and 4th divisions had been already mobilized, while as to the 6th, that division, which is the central corps de armée, has had its head-quarters at Moscow, and is very rarely mobilized, if, indeed, ever. The 5th division, now in course of being mobilized, consists of 260,000 men. We are, therefore, far in advance of the 50,000 men which, according to the Times, Russia had agreed to concentrate upon her eastern provinces. This measure, however, while it cannot fail to cause a considerable sensation in Germany, is nothing but what might have been expected, and is only the equivalent of what England and Prussia have themselves been doing.—Independance.

RUSSIAN FEELING TOWARDS AUSTRIA.

The following extract from the Invalide Russe is a sort of official declaration of the feelings of the Russian Government towards Austria:

"Austria has seized in the Italian peninsula all she could lay hands on, so much so that Italy has latterly become a mere vassal of the House of Hapsburg. Piedmont alone had the hardihood in 1848 to struggle against her, but she was overpowered, and has been ever since an object of implacable hatred to her conquerors, not on account of a political rivalry, for her forces were too disproportionate to those of Austria, but because she had become a constitutional State and presented to the rest of Northern Italy, groaning under the Austrian yoke, the contrast of its civil liberties. Is there any cause for astonishment, therefore, that, possessing the same degree of civilization, the Tuscans, the Modenese, the people of Parma, Rome, and Naples should have thought themselves entitled to the same political rights as the Piedmontese? Can we wonder at their being impatient of the ignorant despotism and oppression of Austria, and that not having effective force they have sought to express their desires by agitation and revolutions? Before the conclusion of peace Count CAVOUR had exposed before the congress the alarming state of Italy. England, France and Russia received his communication with interest, but the desire for peace was so powerful and urgent that it was impossible to stop short in the great question to settle one of then secondary importance. Europe to-day admits she was wrong in putting off this matter, the proportions of which have greatly increased since then, and which has all at once assumed a character of princely importance. Austria now refuses to yield one tittle of her pretensions in Italy. She regards it as a question in which her political vitality is compromised. If she is victorious, the conditions of her victory will be hard, and she will impose throughout Italy the silence of death. Even were she conquered, she will still succeed, at the conclusion of the peace of which every one feels the want, in preserving what now she might have lost by the decree and decision of Europe. Austria acts thus because she feels the sympathies of Great Britain are with her; because she is preëminent in lower Germany, and hoped to maintain an equilibrium in the struggle, or in any case, in the event even of defeat obtain supportable terms. The future will show whether she deceives herself or not. But let it not be forgotten that she has insisted on and commenced this war in the face of the united efforts of all Europe to prevent it. What would she prove by that? Assuredly not her honesty nor her right, nor the happy state of Italy under her rule, nor the necessity of the continuance of her system. In any case the responsibility of so much carnage, of so many families ruined, of so many tears and so much bloodshed, falls back entirely and solely upon the instigators of the warlike policy."

Austrian Forced Loan in Lombardy.

From the London Daily News, May 20.

Austria seems resolved to justify, by fresh acts of violence and oppression, the European condemnation of her Italian rule. Since she crossed the Ticino her Generals and her armies have revealed the cruel and relentless character of the despotism they serve by a course of indiscriminate theft and spoliation, by acts of cruelty and injustice such as have rarely in modern times disgraced the warfare of civilized nations. The movements of the Austrian army in Piedmont are dictated from Vienna, and in the work of local destruction now going on between the Sesia and the Po, we see the character and spirit of the Central Government. That spirit is essentially barbaric. The progress of civilization and refinement has, indeed, veneered the surface, but the [illegible] of arbitrary rule has confirmed and rendered [illegible] the worst vices it engenders. No sooner are the formal restrictions of peace thrown off than Austria appears in her true character. She hastens to indulge her savage lust for plunder, and gratify her savage instincts of cruelty and revenge. The instrument of her "conservative" policy is destruction, and her favorite means of conciliating disaffected subjects the knout and the sword. Every post brings us fresh accounts of the ruthless doings of the Austrians in Piedmont. Their brutal Croats have ravaged a defenceless country, and robbed without pity an innocent and passive people. Within three short weeks they have converted, not only by systematic plunder, but by wanton destruction, the most fertile province of a flourishing Kingdom into a wilderness. This is the punishment inflicted on an industrious and thriving population, whose only crime was loyalty to its constitutional and lawful King.

Austria, it is announced, is now about to deal a similar blow on her own Italian subjects. News has just arrived that the Emperor has determined to inflict on the large towns of Lombardy the heavy chastisement of a forced loan, amounting to seventy-five millions of florins. The Augsburg Gazette, in announcing this extreme measure, couples it in true Bavarian fashion with an insult to the wretched victims of Imperial oppression. They are to be heavily fined, and brought to the brink of ruin, not for their words or acts, but for their "sympathies." The citizens of Lombardy, having Italian blood in their veins, sympathize with the efforts made by neighboring States in the great and common cause of national independence. That is the crime, according to the Austrian organ, which is about to bring upon these cities this heavy punishment. The forced loan is to fall exclusively on the towns, "whose sympathies," says the Augsburg Gazette, "with Piedmont have brought on the war, and who must now pay the piper." The whole of the tax is to be paid in silver, as the bankrupt Government refuses to take its own paper. It might perhaps have been thought that considerations of prudence and policy would have prevented such a wanton outrage on the citizens of Lombardy at such a moment as the present. But Austria is already desperate, and the reign of cruelty and terror has evidently set in. She would surely never otherwise attempt to recruit her exhausted exchequer at the expense of the impoverished townspeople of Lombardy.

The condition of the people on whom it is laid, as well as the object of this forced loan, make it a measure of peculiar and even refined cruelty. During the last ten years the inhabitants of Lombardy have been subjected to a series of fines, taxes and forced loans of the most oppressive and iniquitous kind. In this respect they have, in fact, been treated as slaves, having no right whatever to the produce of the soil they tilled, but only at most to a bare subsistence, just enough to perpetuate the round of hopeless labor to which they were condemned. The land tax, for example, in this province, being more than double the amount levied in other parts of the Empire, absorbs all the profits arising from the cultivation of the soil. In one year alone, in addition to the existing land tax of fifty per cent., an extraordinary tax of 70,000,000 and a forced loan of 120,000,000 of Austrian lires were laid on the people of Lombardy. What has been the natural result—a result not only known, but notorious now throughout the Europe? The land is gradually going out of cultivation. Multitudes, both in town and country, have not only been impoverished, but absolutely ruined, as the annual number of forced or "distress" sales sufficiently proves. Many citizens once well to do have died a miserable and lingering death, while many others lengthen out [illegible] incident of war, and it will of course win no sympathy from those who regard nationalities simply as a convenient means of dynastic advancement. But if we, as a nation, ever cease to look on such deeds with abhorrence, we shall have lost that generous sympathy which is the soul of freedom, and deserve to share the same fate.

Subscriptions to the French War Loan.

M. THEOBALD TASCHER DE LA PAGERIE, a cousin of the Empress JOSEPHINE, has enlisted as a private in the Piedmontese cavalry.

The subscription lists for the war loan of 500 millions were closed yesterday. It is already known that as much as two milliards one hundred and eighty millions of francs is subscribed for, and the lists of seventeen departments are not yet complete. It is calculated that the total will not be less than two milliards and a half. The subscriptions not exceeding 10f. of Rente are estimated at fully 150 millions. The Pays observes that no other country in the world has such large resources to place at the service of its Government and the cause of right.

The Bourse was favorably affected by the English declaration of neutrality and the immense success of the loan. The Rente rose 35c. for cash, and 40c. for account, closing at 61fr. 10c. and 60fr. 95c. Mobilier rose 25c. The Orleans Railway rose 25fr. 50c.; Northern, 27fr. 50c.; Eastern, 20fr.; Lyons, 120fr. 50c.; Southern, 20fr.; and Western 10fr. The market was very firm at the close. It is to be observed, however, that the dispatch from Brussels, stating that Russia has placed five corps d'armée on a war footing, and called out the reserves, was not known to the public during Bourse hours. The Presse is the only journal which publishes that dispatch this evening.

The Belgian papers are all seized to-day.

Spain.

The Madrid journals of the 14th state that the English are repairing and strengthening the fortifications at Gibraltar, and arming batteries; also that troops, heavy guns, and large stores are being collected there. The España, in giving this news, exclaims, "Gibraltar! There is no veritable Spaniard, who loves the glory and dignity of his country, who does not thrill with emotion at the idea of seeing this rock in the hands of foreigners!" and the Discusion gravely recommends the Government "not to abandon the idea" of exchanging Ceuta for it!

The Execution of Tantia Topee.

From the Bombay Gazette.

SEPREE, Monday, April 18.

I had expected before this to have reported the execution of TANTIA TOPEE; but he is still alive, under a strong guard of the Third Bengal Europeans in the fort. But the electric flash may transmit to you his exit long before this reaches you. The telegraph appears to transmit orders concerning TANTIA with its usual rapidity. On Thursday last an escort was told off to accompany him, some reports said to Goonah, others to Jhansi, others to Gwalior, where his family are at present confined in the fort. In a few hours these orders were cancelled. TANTIA was to have been hung on Saturday at 5 P. M., a scaffold having been erected on the encamping ground in front of the old Sepoy lines; but reports say this is intended for a couple of malefactors—father and son—who have lately been amusing themselves by plundering the mail.

MAUN SING, who has his tent and his guard under some trees close by the encampment of the European detachment, and TANTIA TOPEE, are the lions of Sepree at present. MAUN rides out on his prancing charger or smart-going elephant, driving the latter himself, iron spike in hand, followed by his limited retinue and the tagrag and bobtail of the station. No natives are allowed to approach TANTIA,—by his own wish, it is presumed. Europeans only are allowed to have a peep at him. A respectably-dressed native merchant requested to have a look at him. The Baboo said he wished to see TANTIA, as it would be all he would get for 900r. which the rebel chief had some time ago made him disburse. TANTIA looked glum, and the Baboo shook his head.

TANTIA answers questions put to him in Hindustani curtly and apparently straightforwardly; he appears not to understand much English, and to inquiries of him in English or by tyros in Hindustani, he quietly answers, "Malum nai." A glance of quiet contempt is noticed in his countenance when following the departure from his presence of mediocre superiors. For Burra Sahib Major MEADE, TANTIA appears to have considerable respect. MEADE is reported by his own men, and all who know him, to be a kind man and a good soldier. We have generally noticed that a brave, courageous, and considerate soldier is never a martinet, consequently is respected by those who serve under him, and ultimately succeeds in his profession. It would be well for the army were there more of such men.

TANTIA had his charge read to him on Wednesday and Thursday, to which he made a statement, which was afterwards prepared and read to him by a moonshee, he listening attentively, now and then correcting the translation. He afterwards signed this latter document in good English writing, "TANTIA TOPEE." He disclaims all participation in the massacre at Cawnpore, or in the killing of Europeans, except in fair fight; and he also absolves from the same imputation the NENA SAHIB, who, TANTIA says, was at one time made a prisoner by his own men, because he would not proceed with them to Delhi. TANTIA attributes the massacre and subsequent murders to the unrestrained, infuriated soldiery. He states that he himself put provisions, &c., on board the boats at Cawnpore, and that no orders were given to commit the atrocities that ultimately took place. TANTIA says he was fourth in command at Cawnpore; and was afterwards in command at Calpee, where he was four months. At the battle of the Betwa he had the greatest rebel army which had been under his command—22,000 men, with 120 pieces of artillery, but afterwards at Koonch it had dwindled down to 8,000. When the Gwalior Contingent came down on Agra, on the 10th of October, TANTIA commanded, and had then 8,000 with him. He says he would then have given GREATHEAD more to do had he not been deceived by the red jackets of the 3d Bengal Europeans and the noise they made, thinking the reinforcement was greater than it really was. Sir HUGH ROSE in his Gwalior dispatches gives TANTIA TOPEE credit for the skillful disposition of his troops when Sir HUGH attacked them and made the rebels so quickly fly from Gwalior. The last affair which TANTIA states he was engaged in was at Dowsa, in January last, when Brigadier SHOWERS came on the rebels by surprise one morning just before daylight. TANTIA was at some distance in rear when SHOWERS made the attack; but ultimately in this affair had a splendid grey charger shot under him. The rebels were then completely disorganized, disputes were high among their chiefs, and guards were bolting with the scanty ways and means, which were now beginning to be more difficult to get hold of than they had hitherto been. Since then TANTIA TOPEE has been a wanderer and a vagabond until the betrayer, MAUN SING, assisted MEADE in capturing him.

TANTIA was under trial by a court-martial nearly the whole of Friday at Captain FIELD's bungalow. When the officer told him the previous day to prepare for his trial, TANTIA said that he knew for fighting against the British Government his punishment would be death; he wanted no court, and he therefore wished to be dispatched (holding up his manacles) from this misery, either from a gun or by the noose as quickly as possible. He did not wish to see his family, but the only thing he asked the Government was that they would not punish his family for transactions in which they had no concern.

TANTIA TOPEE is a native of Poona, which he left thirty years ago, and it is stated he was a Government pensioner, having been at one time in the Company's military service. Latterly he was in the service of the Nena at Bithoor, as a keranie. He is 49 years of age, stands about 5 feet 6, is stout and well made; has a pretty large head, of great breadth from ear to ear; it is covered bountifully with strong grey hair, with beard, moustache and whiskers to match. His cheek bones are slightly elevated, and his black eye, under sharply-arched eyebrows, is clear and piercing. Altogether, his features are intelligent and expressive, denoting decision, energy and ability. TANTIA is a Bramin, and the Brahminical cord is always very religiously placed over the ear when he goes out of his tent to prepare his meals, &c. He performs his ablutions, goes through his genuflexions, and prepares and devours his [illegible] once a day with all the strictness and religious ceremonies of his caste, having members of the Brahmin caste there to attend him.

[illegible]

chief TANTIA TOPEE, with all the due solemnities of British military routine. When the suspended body became motionless the troops were all marched off, and the body remained hanging for the remainder of the evening. After the troops left, a great scramble was made by officers and others to get a lock of hair, &c.

SALE OF PUBLIC LANDS—NAVAL MATTERS, &C.

WASHINGTON, Friday, June 3.

The President has issued a proclamation for the sale of public lands in Iowa, commencing at Fort Dodge the 26th September, and at Sioux City the 3d October; they are in the northwestern part of Iowa, at the head of the Des Moines River and its tributaries.

Passed Assistant-Surgeon HORWITZ has been ordered to the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery as Assistant Chief of that Bureau. Surgeon [illegible] and Assistant-Surgeon [illegible] have been ordered to the San Jacinto.

The steamer Roanoke will, it is said, bring the Japanese Commissioners from Panama to New-York.

Commander POWELL will leave in the steamer of the 20th, to take command of the sloop-of-war St. Mary's, now at Panama.

Captain DAHLGREN, having, by order of the chief of the Bureau of Ordnance and Hydrography, examined and tested JOSLYN's breech-loading carbine, officially reports that this style of arm commends itself to the tests of the service, the only objection being the shortness of the barrel.

Shocking Murder in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Friday, June 3.

JOSEPH CHARLESS, one of the oldest and most respected of our citizens, was shot and mortally wounded on the street this morning, by G. W. THORNTON, formerly teller in the Boatmen's Savings Institution.

THORNTON was tried and acquitted about a year ago on a charge of having stolen $20,000 from the Bank, and CHARLESS happened to be one of the principal witnesses against him.

ST. LOUIS, Friday, June 3—P. M.

Intense excitement exists among all classes of our citizens in consequence of the shooting of Mr. CHARLESS.

At about noon from two to three thousand persons repaired to the jail, with the avowed purpose of forcibly taking and hanging the prisoner, but through the exertions of the Police and the influence of several prominent citizens, the excitement was somewhat allayed, and a majority of the crowd prevailed upon to disperse. A squad of excited men, however, lingered around the jail all the afternoon, whilst others traversed the streets threatening vengeance upon the culprit. To prevent violence, the Mayor has ordered out the Military, some of whom, now 8 o'clock, are standing on guard in the jail-yard, while others are patrolling the streets, prepared instantly to suppress any threatened outbreak.

Mr. CHARLESS still lingers, but his death is looked for at every moment. He received two pistol wounds in the abdomen, either one of which the surgeons pronounce mortal.

ST. LOUIS, Friday, June 3—9 P. M.

Much excitement still exists, and it is feared that the announcement of the demise of the wounded man will be the signal for a general outbreak.

Mr. CHARLESS is the senior partner of the firm of CHARLESS, BLOW & Co., and he is looked upon as one of the oldest and most esteemed merchants of the city. The attack upon him is universally regarded as the most unprovoked and cold-blooded on record.

THE WEST INDIES.

[illegible] in the Island of Trinidad.

PORT OF SPAIN, Island of Trinidad, Tuesday, April 5, 1859.

Trinidad has been surnamed "The Indian Paradise," and so far as external beauty may entitle it to that name, it is magnificently preeminent in this Western archipelago. In point of size—containing over 2,000 square miles—Trinidad is the largest British West India Island after Jamaica; but in positional importance, from its proximity to the Venezuelan coast, it is only second to Cuba.

Approaching from the North, the hills of Trinidad may be seen at an immense distance, running in a continuous ridge east and west, rising to a height of over 3,000 feet, sloping almost perpendicularly to the sea, and abruptly broken at their western extremity into three entrances—the Bocas, or passages to the Gulf of Paria. Adventurous navigators sometimes tempt the perils of the smaller Bocas in order to shorten the distance, but the Boca grande, formed by a solitary island rock on the left, and the Pointe Gap of Pena on the right, is always selected by those wary pilots who have experienced the Scyllas and Charybdes of the "Dragon's Mouth." Once through the passage, and the storm, whatever may have been its force, is no longer felt, and the waters of the Gulf, fresh from the capacious tides of the mighty Orinoco, are still and calm as those of the most secluded lake. And here a scene of surpassing splendor is unfolded to view. Trinidad—forest-covered from mountain-top to water's edge, its luxuriant and gigantic vegetation rich with a coloring that eternal Summer alone can give—invites your approach on the one hand, while, on the other, the smoking hills of Venezuela loom through the heated atmosphere, and shrink away over the distant main. The Gulf of Paria is an extensive harbor, in which all the navies of the world might safely anchor. It is shallow near the coast of Trinidad, and is supposed to have been originally a lake formed in the delta of the Orinoco. That the island at no very remote period was part of the South American coast we may now fully believe; for a geological survey, which has occupied two years and is just completed, under the auspices of the Colonial Government, has placed the fact beyond a doubt. The Surveyor's report, when published, will be a most valuable contribution to science. The identity of the animal and vegetable productions of Trinidad with those of the neighboring province of Cumana—productions which are not to be found in the other Antilles—long made it evident to the most unscientific that Trinidad was detached from the neighboring Continent, and the [illegible] of the period at which the catastrophe occurred was believed on the strength of a tradition extant among the Indians when, in 1498, the island was discovered by Columbus, that the separation had been caused by an earthquake at no very distant date. The truth of these suppositions is now confirmed by scientific observations. From the survey, to which I have alluded, it appears that precious metals do not exist in Trinidad. Limestone, sandstone and slate are the principal rock, and bitumen or fossil pitch is to be found in great abundance. Every one has heard of that great natural phenomenon, the Pitch Lake, situated on the leeward side of the island. It is some five or six miles square, and is composed of bituminous [illegible] sand and earth cemented together—a material which is now converted into valuable [illegible]. The soils of Trinidad, like its physical appearance and geological production, are very various, and are classed under the three heads of clay, loam and alluvial deposits. They are extremely fertile and will compare favorably with the best soils of Cuba and San Domingo.

On the west coast of Trinidad, its principal town, Port-of-Spain, lies embosomed in an amphitheatre of hills. The capital has a population of over 20,000 souls, and, in beauty and regularity of construction, is held to be the second city in the West Indies. There is more life and business activity in Port-of-Spain, than in any other town in the British Antilles that I have seen. Extensive quays and large commodious stores give to the place, at the first glance, an air of some commercial importance. The streets are wide, are well laid out, and run parallel or at right angles with each other. The principal thoroughfare, King-street, at the head of which stands the Catholic Cathedral, is nearly twice as wide as Broadway, and as long as from the Park to the Battery. Two rows of trees, huge in stature and magnificent in foliage, run along the centre from end to end, except where they are broken by a fountain; the carriage-ways being on either side, and a road for horse exercise in the middle. To the roots of some of the finest cedars on this street, the axe was lately laid, because their blossoms offended the delicate senses of resident proprietors, but there were no such advocates here for the glorious cedar as you found for the miserable ailanthus. The stores on either side of King-street, would not disgrace a city of ten times the population of Port-of-Spain. The streets are kept clean, the drainage is good, the houses are well and [illegible] of decayed and decaying fortunes that meet one at every turn in the towns of St. Vincent or Granada; there is, on the contrary, palpable evidence of increasing prosperity. No investigation is needed to ascertain the fact. As a straw to indicate the amount of business in the place, it may be interesting to know that the Trinidad branch of the Colonial Bank, after paying all expenses, makes a profit of over $100,000 per annum. A public hospital, recently built in Port-of-Spain, cannot be surpassed by any in America. The churches are large, elegant structures, and though the Government buildings are not as commodious or as extensive as the necessities of the community require, I have seen much worse ones in more pretentious cities. I notice, however, that among the estimates for the current year, $82,000 are set apart for new works and repairs of public buildings, which will include the completion of the sewerage works and a residence for the Governor, who lives at present in a small country cottage. The market place of Port-of-Spain is large, and supplied with every convenience. Like the French market in New-Orleans, it shows off to best advantage on a Sunday morning, when the grounds are crowded. There is a very creditable library and news-room in the town, and in spite of their low latitude, the inhabitants are not so much out of the world as might be supposed. No thanks, however, to the newspapers, of which there are a weekly and three semi-weekly published in the island—one at San Fernando, and the others at Port-of-Spain. The opposition journal, in the interest of the colored population, is weak, coarse, and not to be relied upon; the Government journal gives the diluted opinions of a very inefficient Governor. Trinidad cannot boast of an "independent press" in any form or shape. Port-of-Spain is well supplied with water from the Maraval River. The reservoir is about three miles distant from town. Pipes varying from two to six inches in diameter, are laid in all the streets, and hydrants are disposed at every 300 feet for protection against fire. This hasty sketch of the Trinidadian capital will sufficiently illustrate that the inhabitants are both able and willing to keep up with the progress of the age. A steamer runs daily to various towns along the island coast, and another, destined for the same duty, will arrive from England in the course of a few months. Land in the city, well located, is valued at 50 and 75 cents a foot, and a two-story store will rent from $1,200 to $2,000 a year.

So much for the town; the country districts exhibit equal enterprise and progress. The whole island in its physical character, is one of the most beautiful that it is possible to imagine. Lofty mountains run in parallel ranges east and west, intersected by deep valleys which contract into gorges at the centre. Nature could offer nothing more magnificent for sugar cultivation than these valleys, with their rich alluvial soil, while the hill sides are admirably adapted to the growth of the cocoa and tropical fruits and vegetables. Except at the Naparimas, where the principal sugar plantations are situated and present a district of uninterrupted cultivation, Trinidad has the appearance of a wild, unreclaimed and densely-wooded country, broken up with savannahs. Select any elevated point for a view, and its picturesqueness and variety are marvellous. Here will be a hill-side [illegible] in the golden blossoms of the Poui; there another, covered with the orange flower of the noble [illegible]; beyond, a forest of gigantic cedar. Those masses of bright green, on the left, are clusters of arched bamboo, stretching over the banks of a rivulet which can scarcely be distinguished through the luxuriant vegetation. At your feet, like a bright red carpet, extends a cocoa plantation, for the trees have now shed their leaves and are covered with flowers; further on, a savannah, or a cane-field, a grove of lofty cocoanut trees, and, in the distance, the deep blue sea. Such a variety of rich, voluptuous coloring it is barely possible to imagine. The birds of "Northern climes [illegible]" would not harmonize here, and accordingly Nature has filled the scene with myriads of feathered tribes, and clothed them with a brilliant plumage that none but the Great Limner could reproduce.

But I must pass from the natural aspect of Trinidad—from its woods, so valuable and multiplied, its vegetation so luxuriant and varied—its ornithological treasures so exhaustless—to subjects more practical. I have merely wished to show that, unlike Barbadoes and its complete cultivation, the settlement of this island and its history have only just commenced. With a present population of 70,000 souls, Trinidad can sustain half a million. Its soil is of exceeding richness, and of the million and a quarter square acres which cover its surface, twenty-nine thirtieths are capable of cultivation. Its resources are immense; every product of the Tropics can be grown here; and a laboring population is only wanted to develop the wealth that lies hidden in forests tenanted only by [illegible] scattered representatives of the ancient Carib. The island, as I shall hereafter show, is fast receiving that laboring population; and, since the immigration of Indian Coolies commenced, it has sprung from a condition of hopeless lethargy into one of activity and life—an example and a guide to the other colonies. Within the last few years the extension of sugar cultivation has been very great, and the work of progress still goes on.

But a vast work has to be done before the island can be brought under the complete dominion of man. There are now about 60,000 acres under cultivation, of which 30,000 are in cane, 7,000 in cacao, and the remainder in provisions and pasture. There are about 200 sugar estates, yielding on an average 200 hogsheads, and some as many as 800 and 1,000 hogsheads. It is impossible to form a correct idea of the value of land from an average estimate when land varies in price as much as it does here, but it is fair to say that where a Trinidad estate would bring $100 per acre, one in Barbados would bring $400 and even $500. The reputation that the Barbadian Creole enjoys as a good, steady laborer, makes the difference, for the soil and climate of Trinidad are both superior for sugar growing to those of the sister island. Trinidad is not yet sufficiently well known, except it be by its own inhabitants, and they have the most brilliant hopes in the future.

The planters of this island are not very far advanced in the science of agriculture, if we judge of their proficiency by the product of their estates, which only average one to one and a half hogsheads of sugar per acre; but the excuse given is that, as yet they have not been able to devote money or time to a more scientific culture of their land. Their mills, however, are very superior to those of Barbados. One hundred and thirty-five are worked with steam, and turn out six and eight hogsheads per day; about a hundred are worked with cattle, and a few with water-power. The latter will soon be obsolete. Besides the regular planters, there are a very large number of small proprietors who grow their own provisions; of these I shall speak more particularly in a subsequent letter, which I shall devote to the Creole population of the island.

The cocoa, or cacao as it should be written, is, next to sugar, the most important article of Trinidadian growth and export. Being far less profitable than sugar, and prospering only in virgin lands, it is believed that it will ultimately go out of cultivation. These plantations at present cover about 7,000 acres, yielding over two pounds per tree, or about 700 pounds per acre. Cotton, coffee, and tobacco can all be cultivated in Trinidad, but the first two could not, by any possibility, be made as profitable to the planter as sugar, and the cultivation of the last is not encouraged, though at the London exhibition of 1851 a specimen of Trinidad tobacco was considered only inferior to the Havana. But, for the present, the paramount object of the Trinidad proprietary is to obtain labor and increase the cultivation of the cane; other things will follow in course of time. A move which requires early attention is the withdrawal of a portion of the lands—exceeding altogether a million of acres—locked up in the possession of the Crown. Out of the entire island only 213,292 acres have been appropriated to private persons. It cannot be the intention of Government to monopolize these lands, but a disposition is certainly evinced to throw obstacles in the way of their settlement. It is more difficult to understand such a policy now that the planters obtain labor from abroad, and no longer fear a decrease of the force through the establishment of a small proprietary body. At one time they adopted every means in their power to crush out the small proprietors. It was a foolish effort; but causes existed then which do not exist now.

With the advantages that Trinidad offers to agricultural industry, it is a wonder why immigration does not set in here from the British Isles. A few of the exiled chartists came to the island some years ago, and all are doing well. The climate is glorious; essentially tropical, but tempered with pleasant breezes. The thermometer averages 80°, and seldom rises or sinks below that figure; the heat does not exceed the heat of New-York in June, July and August. In spite of occasional visitations of yellow fever (lingering at the present moment in Port-of-Spain,) the average mortality is not greater than that of London, and not so great as that of New-York. From what I have seen of the yellow fever in the West Indies, I am convinced that nine of its victims out of ten are people of intemperate habits. The European residents of the West Indies are, as a class the most [illegible] in the world. There is one [illegible] to be indigenous in Trinidad: it is leprosy. It is very prevalent [illegible]. There is a leper asylum a short distance from the capital, but the afflicted are not under compulsion to enter it. The consequence is that mendicant lepers may be found begging on the highways and in the streets of Port-of-Spain—most loathsome objects to contemplate.

MR. PRENTICE'S REASONS FOR COL. MARSHALL'S RETIREMENT.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Monday, May 30, 1859.

According to the Louisville Journal of the 28th, Col. MARSHALL, though profoundly impressed with the belief that "the triumph of the Opposition movement in Kentucky is of the very first importance to the welfare and permanency of the Union," has, "after a struggle in his own mind, protracted to the last moment, felt constrained to yield to the voice of nature, against the fainter and less pressing accents of his country." Not that the Colonel now cared for his country less, but that he cared for his family more.

Still, it may be remarked, Mr. PRENTICE seems more exercised about the state of the Colonel's private affairs, than the Colonel himself. The Journal apparently manifested more solicitude about his "urgent private interests," his "most sacred private duties," his "most painful and protracted internal conflict" between the calls of "his country" and the calls of "himself and his family," than does the embarrassed, struggling, and suffering Colonel himself. All the Colonel says in his letter declining the Opposition's nomination for Congress is, that he has concluded to "indulge his cherished purpose" and "retire from politics and public affairs." He lays no such stress upon the "pressing" condition of his domestic concerns as does all at once, his friend and spokesman PRENTICE; who, until the 26th of May, never intimated that there was the least doubt on any score, public or private, about his running, and gave the Opposition of this District every assurance that he would run.

The Journal said he was just the man for the place and the occasion; the long known unanimous choice of the District rendered his nomination by Convention "a mere formality;" the voice of the Opposition of Kentucky and the nation demanded his nomination and insured his acceptance; and, he having been nominated, the glorious triumph of the "new party" here and elsewhere was, thereupon, a "fixed fact." HUMPHREY MARSHALL was well aware that if he permitted his name to go before the Convention his nomination was a foregone conclusion; yet, whatever his "circumstances," (and he probably understood his private ones as well then as a month later,) he did permit it, and, from the outgivings of the Journal everybody inferred that he accepted, would still "serve his country," and in a very few days enter upon the canvass against Col. HOLT with his former alacrity.

But now, after a month's "mature reflection," he coolly and curtly announces to his old and astonished constituents his "retirement from politics!" And his old editorial friend, with all his paramount regard for the public interests, after all his praise of MARSHALL as the most deserving and available, and his assurances of the Opposition's success under his banner, of his reëlection by a rousing majority, coolly and without the slightest expression of regret, notes his retirement; gives the startling event a mere passing glance, and states, as a sufficient and satisfactory cause, that his "private affairs," "reasons wholly personal to himself," of which no public mention had ever been made before, compelled it! HUMPHREY MARSHALL, at the eleventh hour, has been constrained to "yield to the voice of nature," and to "leave the agitation of public questions to others;" and GEORGE D. PRENTICE forthwith accepts that sacrifice without a murmur, and bows to the potency of that voice, as over and above the "accents of his country" and the "earnest wishes of the National Opposition."

Mr. PRENTICE's explanation of the Colonel's conduct may be approved by the latter, and be as acceptable to all our "Opposition" voters as it is to their reputed organ. PRENTICE and MARSHALL may still be warm political friends. At all events, I trust nothing serious will result to the "new party" from the withdrawing of one so much dreaded by HOLT. Our Opposition's "ardor," may be, as the Journal represents it, still "extraordinary," despite the removal of a great shining light, and may repair their loss. If they shall put up a man of capacity and character, who will stand fairly and squarely upon their Louisville platform, they can and will elect him.

Utah Affairs.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM ATTORNEY-GENERAL BLACK—THE PRESIDENT'S VIEWS FURTHER STATED.

From the Constitution, June 3.

The following letter from the Attorney-General to the District Attorney for Utah explains still further the views of the Administration on the subject of the judicial proceedings in that Territory. The great error of the Judges (or some of them at least) seems to have consisted in a belief that they were to be prosecutors, and not unprejudiced magistrates, to decide between the accusers and the accused. The President's view is altogether different. In his eyes a Judge is to be as impartial as possible, and to weigh the evidence in scales as even as the nature of things will admit. That Judge forgets the duties of his office who rails at a party before he hears him, and it looks like something worse than forgetfulness when he pronounces a whole community guilty of high crimes without waiting for a regular trial.

Mr. BUCHANAN's prudence and justice in this affair cannot be too much commended. He has shown no harshness to any of the erring officers, but has done what was necessary to secure the impartial administration of justice by such admonitions as will keep the Judges within their own sphere, and at the same time quicken the diligence of the District-Attorney and Marshal. A proper conformity to these views is especially necessary in Utah, if it be true that many high crimes have been committed there which call for severe punishment. If the judiciary should ever aim at the virtue and the wisdom which win public respect, it is in those places where its intervention is most needed and oftenest called for.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S OFFICE, May 17, 1859.

SIR: Your letters of March 24 and April 6, addressed to me, have been received. The grave importance of the facts contained in them, and in other communications from Utah by the same mail, required that the whole correspondence of the several departments with the officers of the Territory should be laid before the President. He has carefully considered the subject, and his opinion will be found expressed in a letter from me to the two associate Justices of the Territory, a copy of which I send you.

You are clothed with the authority of a public accuser for the Territory. It is your duty to commence and carry on all public prosecutions with such aid and assistance as you see proper to call in. On proper occasions, and in a proper and respectful manner, you must oppose every effort which any judge may make to usurp your functions. Do not allow your rights to remain unasserted. If the judges will confine themselves to the simple and plain duty imposed upon them by law of hearing and deciding the cases that are brought before them, I am sure that the business of the Territory will get along very well. This must be impressed upon their minds, if possible, for if they will insist upon doing the duties of prosecuting attorney and marshal as well as their own, everything will be thrown into confusion, and the peace of the Territory may be destroyed at any moment.

But your duty must be performed with energy and impartiality. Every crime that is committed, no matter by whom, should be exposed and punished. I need not say that you are to make no distinction between Gentile and Mormon, or between Indian and white man. You will prosecute the rich and the poor, the influential and the humble, with equal vigor, and thus entitle yourself to the confidence of all.

It is only by these general remarks that I can express the wishes of the President with reference to your office; for at this distance it is impossible to give you detailed instructions. But there is one subject to which I would call special attention. It appears that a company of emigrants from Arkansas to California was attacked at the Mountain Meadows, three hundred miles south of Salt Lake, and one hundred and nineteen cruelly murdered, none being spared except some children, all of whom were under seven years of age. This crime, by whomsoever committed, was one of the most atrocious that has ever blackened the character of the human race. The Mormons blame it upon the Indians, and the accusation receives some color from the fact that all the children who survived the massacre were found in the possession of Indians. Others, and among them a Judge of the Territory, declare their unhesitating belief that the Mormons themselves committed this foul murder. All the circumstances seem, from the correspondence, to be enveloped in mystery. In your letter the manner of the murder is described—showing that the emigrants were attacked within a corral which they had formed for defence; that they agreed to surrender their arms upon the promise that their lives should be spared, and after doing so were all of them treacherously butchered. Why does the information stop there? If that much be known, how is that we know no more? Who were the parties that received this surrender, and how is it proved? Cannot the superintendent of Indian affairs, or some one connected with that Department of the public service trace back the children from the Indians in whose possession they were found to the corral where their parents were slain? It is said that some of the Mormon inhabitants of Utah have property of the emigrants in their possession. If this be true, will it not furnish a thread which, properly followed, would lead back to the scene of the crime?

These are mere suggestions, which are intended to show the interest of the Government in the subject, rather than to instruct you in the performance of your duty. It is, however, confidently expected of you that you will intermit no watch, nor let any opportunity escape you of learning all that can be known upon this subject. If you shall be under the necessity of employing agents, such reasonable expense as you may be put to on that account will be paid.

Your conduct at Provo seems, from all accounts of it, to have been perfectly proper, and is fully approved by the President. Your refusal on a former occasion to violate the promise of [illegible] in the President's proclamation was equally praiseworthy and correct.

I am, very respectfully, yours, &c.,

J. S. BLACK.

ALEX. WILSON, Esq., United States District Attorney, Utah Territory.

NEWS FROM THE ARMY IN UTAH.

Correspondence of the Louisville Courier.

CAMP FLOYD, Wednesday, May 4, 1859.

The continued absence of the paymaster has caused a pressure in the money market, never before experienced in any country, and were it not in the hopes of his arrival at no distant day, I do not know what would become of us. In the entire camp $1,000 in coin could not be procured, even at 25 per cent. Government vouchers are plenty, but are of no avail, being in sums too large for general circulation at par, and holders not relishing the idea of paying 20 or 25 per cent. for coin.

Capt. SIMPSON's topographical engineers left here on Monday last for Carson Valley, for the purpose of exploring a route. They will be absent some three months. He employed Mr. REESE, a Mormon Bishop, as guide. The escort that left this post a short time ago, after Maj. PRINCE, also went under the guidance of a Mormon. Much dissatisfaction has been expressed by the Gentile citizens here, against Capt. TURNLEY, A. Q. M., for giving employment to Mormons when, at the same time large numbers of discharged teamsters (Gentiles) are actually suffering for want of food. The conduct of RUSSELL, MAJORS, and WADDELL has been most outrageous in discharging teamsters here, cheating them out of their hard-earned pay when possible.

On Monday, a party started for Cave Valley, about forty miles from this post, where, report says, gold has been found in great abundance. Should this prove to be the case, numbers of Californians will come here.

Judge CRADLEBAUGH has gone south to Mountain Meadows, for the purpose of procuring evidence in that terrible and stupendous massacre.

Breach of Promise Case in St. Louis—Damages $100,000.

A telegram from St. Louis, published yesterday, announced the rendition of a verdict of $100,000 against one HENRY SHAW, of that city, at the suit of Miss EFFIE CARSTANG, in an action of breach of promise of marriage. The St. Louis papers publish voluminous reports of the evidence. It appears that the defendant, HENRY SHAW, is sixty years of age, and very wealthy. The plaintiff is a spinster of 30 years, who, aided by her two sisters, one of them a widow, kept a boarding-house. Mr. SHAW seems to have paid particular attention to plaintiff, whose name is "EFFIE," brought her flowers, brought his carriage to her door, had her out to ride with him, and in different ways made himself and the lady the town-talk. Plaintiff charges that he solemnly promised to marry her, yet went off and left her. To revenge herself for this slight, she sued Mr. SHAW for breach of promise, laying her damages at the moderate amount of $100,000. According to the telegraphic dispatch, the gallant Western jury has rendered a verdict for the full amount claimed. Of course, an appeal will be taken.

The lady's antecedents are fully set forth in the following testimony, given by one JOHN MUDIE, from which it appears that Miss CARSTANG is a native of New York, and that her father was a Methodist minister, who officiated in this City and in Brooklyn:

John Mudie, sworn—I have known plaintiff since childhood; she was born and raised in New-York City; her father was a preacher; he lived both in New-York and Brooklyn; his name was Gideon Carstang; he was pretty well advanced in life when he died; he was a Methodist preacher; I have heard him preach frequently; I knew his wife, the mother of Miss Effie; she died in 1848, while on a visit to Philadelphia; plaintiff was in her father's house in New-York; it was over a year afterwards that her father died; he went South with his daughter to reclaim his health; Miss Effie went to take care of him; he returned to New-York, and died shortly afterwards; plaintiff was living with her aunt in Charleston; I think from Charleston she came back to New-York; Miss Effie and her sister then went to Cincinnati; her father left her property; he was very well off; while they were in Cincinnati I wrote them that the church grounds were about to be sold, and I did not want her father's remains desecrated, and that she had better come on and have them removed; Miss Effie came on and had it done; they were living in Cincinnati, or near there, with their aunt; she was a Mrs. Seaman; she is now in this city ill and in bed, unable to come out; first saw her on the 3d day of March; I called on her here the evening of my arrival; her deportment as a girl and young woman is virtuous, chaste and proper; as a prudent and dis- [illegible]

[illegible] a cretion. Miss Effie did not know I was coming to St. Louis at all; John P. Seaman has a residence at No. 122 North Fifth street, St. Louis; the husband of Miss Effie's sister is David Seaman; he is at Long Island; I am here on business, intending to reside in Missouri; I am a book-keeper; the estate of the Rev. Mr. Carstang consisted in real estate and cash; I never asked him; I judged he was a man of considerable property; he lived well and brought his family up well and comfortably; his house was always full; Mrs. Seaman and Mrs. Osborn are the same person; she married Mr. Seaman first; Mr. Osborn is dead; it is natural for us to call her aunt Seaman, and I suppose she calls herself Mrs. Seaman because of that.

LAW REPORTS.

SLAVES.

Another Supreme Court Decision.

SLAVES ARE SUBJECT TO PUNISHMENT UNDER THE LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

RICHMOND, Wednesday, June 1, 1859.

In the Times, of Tuesday last, appeared a notice of the case of a slave woman AMY, indicted for robbing the U. S. Mail, and the argument of JOHN HOWARD, Esq., for the defence, or in behalf of AMY's master. The case was brought up on a motion to set aside the verdict of guilty, which had been found against her, and which would consign her to the Penitentiary in the District of Columbia for a term of not less than two nor more than ten years—the plea being that she was a Slave. The Chief Justice gave his opinion yesterday, denying the motion as follows:

The United States vs. Amy.—Before the U. S. Circuit Court, for the Eastern District of Virginia.

DECISION OF CHIEF JUSTICE TANEY.

The prisoner in this case was indicted for stealing and taking a letter from the Post-office, containing articles of value particularly described in the indictment. It appeared in evidence in the trial that she was, at the time the offense was committed, and at the time of the trial, a Slave; and her counsel thereupon prayed the direction of the Court to the Jury, that the prisoner was not embraced in the description of persons to which the law in question applied, and upon whom it intends to inflict punishment.

The motion was overruled by the Court, and the prisoner under its direction was found guilty by the jury as charged in the indictment.

And a motion is now made to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial, upon the ground that the instruction asked for ought to have been given, and that the Court erred in refusing it.

The act of March 3, 1825, sec. 22, under which the prisoner is indicted, provides, that if any person shall steal or take a letter from the mail or any post-office, the offender shall, upon conviction thereof, be imprisoned for not less than two nor more than ten years.

It has been argued in support of the motion that a slave, in the eye of the law, is regarded as property. And as the act of Congress speaks only of persons, without any reference to the property of the master, and makes no provision to compensate him for its loss, it was not intended and does not operate upon slaves.

It is true that the slave is the property of the master—and his right of property is recognized and secured by the Constitution and laws of the United States. And it is equally true that he is not a citizen, and would not be embraced in a law operating only upon that class of persons. Yet he is a person, and is always spoken of and described as such in the State papers and public acts of the United States.

Thus the two clauses in the Constitution which point particularly to property in slaves, and sanction its acquisition and provide for its protection, both speak of them as persons, without any other or further word or description.

The clause which authorized their importation, declares that, "That the migration or importation of such persons as any of the States now existing shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by Congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight."

And the clause intended to protect the right of property in the master, provides "That no person held to service or labor in one State under the laws thereof, escaping into another, shall, in consequence of any law or regulation therein be discharged from such service or labor, but shall be delivered upon claim of the party to whom such labor or service may be due."

And the third clause of the second section of the first article, which apportions the representation in Congress, among the several States, describes them by the same word; and provides that "representation and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons." And under this description slaves have always been enumerated in the census. And the slaveholding States represented in Congress according to their numbers in the proportion specified. And no one has ever questioned the right of the slaveholding States to this representation, or doubted the meaning of the words all other persons.

It is evident, therefore, that the word persons is used in the Constitution to describe slaves as well as freemen. And a Court of justice would not be justified in refusing to give the same word the same construction, when it is used in an act of Congress unless there was something in the object and policy of the law, or in the provisions with which the [illegible] offences therein enumerated. The offenses were as likely to be committed by slaves as by freemen—and the mischief equally great whether committed by the one or the other. And, if a slave is not within the law, it would be in the power of the evil-disposed to train and tutor him for these depredations on the mails and post-offices; and, as the slave could not be a witness, the culprit who was the real instigator of the crime would not be brought to punishment. And, if the slave himself is not within the law, the crime might be committed daily and with perfect impunity; and all of the safeguards which Congress intended to provide for the protection of its mails and post-offices would be of no value. Such a construction would defeat the whole evident object and policy of the law, and would rather tempt to the commission of those offences by the certainty of impunity, than to prevent them by the fear of punishment.

In expounding this law, we must not lose sight of the two-fold character which belongs to the slave. He is a person and also property. As property, the rights of the owner are entitled to the protection of the law. As a person, he is bound to obey the law, and may like any other person be punished if he offends against it. And he may be embraced in the provisions of the law, either by the description of property, or as a person, according to the subject matter upon which Congress or a State is legislating.

It is true that some of the offences created by this act of Congress subjects the party to both fine and imprisonment. And it is evident that the incapacity and disabilities of a slave were not in the mind and contemplation of Congress when it inflicted pecuniary punishment; for he can have no property, and is also incapable of making a contract, and consequently could not borrow the amount of the fine; and a small fine, which could be but a slight punishment to another, would in effect, in his case, be imprisonment for life, if the Court adopted the usual course of committing the party until the fine was paid. And we think it must be admitted that in imposing those pecuniary penalties, Congress could not have intended to embrace persons who were slaves; and we greatly doubt whether a Court of Justice could lawfully imprison a party for not doing an act which, by the law of his condition, it was impossible for him to perform. And to imprison him to compel the master to pay the fine, would be equally objectionable, as that would be punishing an innocent man for the crime of another.

The case before us, however, does not involve this question, and we must not be understood as expressing a decided opinion upon it. The offence of which the prisoner has been found guilty, is punished by the law by imprisonment only—and that punishment is, without doubt, looked to with as much apprehension and fear, and felt as severely by the slave as it is by the freeman.

But although the difficulty above mentioned will arise in passing the sentence of the law where both fine and imprisonment are imposed, yet that circumstance will not justify the Court in departing from the sense and meaning in which the word persons is used in the Constitution, especially when it is obvious that the whole object and purpose of this act of Congress would be defeated, if the word person, as used in it was held not to embrace a person who was a slave.

Nor do we doubt the authority of Congress to pass this law. It is true that no compensation is provided for the master for the loss of service during the period of imprisonment. But the clause in the fifth amendment of the Constitution, which declares that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation, cannot, upon any fair interpretation, apply to the case of a slave who is punished in his own person for an offence committed by him—although the punishment may incidentally affect the property of another to whom he belongs. The clause obviously applies to cases where private property is taken to be used as property for the benefit of the Government, and not to cases where crimes are punished by law. And if, in one of those contingencies which sometimes arise in time of war, a slave is pressed by the proper authority into the public service in order to be employed as a laborer or teamster, or in any other manner, this clause of the Constitution undoubtedly makes it the duty of Congress to compensate the master for the loss he sustains. In such cases, and in all other cases where the slave is taken and used as property for the benefit of the Government, the Government acts directly and consciously upon the master's right of property without any reference to the personal rights or personal duties of the slave towards the Government. It deals with him as property only, and not as a person—and as it takes property to be used for the public emolument, it must pay for it.

But punishment for crime stands upon very different principles. A person, whether free or slave, is [illegible]

[illegible] is or is not bound, in justice to compensate the master for the loss of service during the time the slave shall be imprisoned. The question does not depend upon any provision in the Constitution, nor has it been provided for by any act of Congress. And as the matter now stands, it is a question for the decision of the political department of the Government, and not for the judicial; and consequently is one upon which this Court forbears to express an opinion. It would seem, from the statement in the argument at the bar, that in different slave-holding States different opinions upon the subject have been adopted and acted upon by the constituted authorities.

In maintaining the power of the United States to pass this law, it is, however, proper to say, that as these letters, with the money in them, were stolen in Virginia, the party might undoubtedly have been punished in the State tribunals, according to the laws of the State, without any reference to the Post-office or the act of Congress. Because, from the nature of our Government, the same act may be an offence against the laws of the United States, and also of a State, and be punishable in both. This was considered and decided in the Supreme Court of the United States, in the case of Fox vs. The State of Ohio, (5 How., 432,) and in the case of The United States vs. Peter Marigold, (9 How., 560,) and punishment in one sovereignty is no bar to his punishment in the other. Yet, in all civilized countries, it is recognized as a fundamental principle of justice that a man ought not to be punished twice for the same offence. And if this party had been punished for the larceny in a State tribunal, the Court would have felt it to be its duty to suspend sentence, and to represent the facts to the President, to give him an opportunity of ordering a nolle prosequi, or granting a pardon. But there does not appear to have been any proceeding in the State tribunals, or under the State laws, to punish the offence. And as the prisoner has been proceeded against according to the laws of the United States, and found guilty by a jury selected and impanneled according to the act of Congress, we see no ground for setting aside the verdict or suspending the sentence.

And the motion is therefore overruled.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

Before Judge Betts.

BRONZE STATUARY—CLOCKS.

The United States vs. Four Cases marked B. B. & Co., containing clocks, &c.—This was an action to forfeit goods for an alleged violation of the Revenue laws. The goods were imported from Paris by Ball, Black & Co., by the steamship Ætna in March last. The cases contained some clocks and some bronze statuary, which, though separate from the clocks, was fitted to be placed on the tops of the clocks. The Tariff act of 1857 allows the entry of all statues, statuary and busts of marble, bronze, &c.," free of duty, but imposes a duty of 24 per cent. on all "clocks and parts of clocks." Some of this statuary, fitted for the clocks and having tickets bearing the same number as the clocks, were entered as free of duty. The Custom-house appraisers claimed that they should have been entered as part of clocks, that the invoice was forfeited by reason of this false and fraudulent entry.

The claimants produced witnesses, who testified that the articles in question were known as bronze statuary in the trade; they also gave evidence that they had always paid duty upon statuary intended for clocks, and directed their broker to enter them as dutiable, and that his entry of these goods as free was by some mistake, owing to haste in making the entry.

The jury, on this evidence, brought in a sealed verdict this morning against the United States, and in favor of the claimants.

For the United States, Mr. Hunt and Mr. Dwight; For claimants, Mr. Ridgway.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Justice Sutherland.

Norman A. Freeman vs. Seth M. Harris.—This was a motion to discharge defendant from arrest; the action being for a libel. This morning Justice SUTHERLAND denied the motion, but without costs and without prejudice to the right of defendant to make such motion as he shall be advised, for a speedy trial at Circuit.

Theodore W. Bayaud, et al., vs. Jerome B. Fellows.—The facts in this case are that, about the 14th day of September, 1857, the plaintiffs transferred to the defendant, at the Custom-house of this port, five hundred quarter casks of liquor, called "Burgundy Port Wine," which was then stored in the bonded warehouse kept by M. S. Driggs & Co., and was liable to duties; and on the same day they delivered to the defendant the warehouse receipts of M. S. Driggs & Co., with the plaintiffs' order or indorsement, directing them to deliver the liquor to the defendant. On the next day this order was presented to M. S. Driggs & Co., and accepted by them in a written agreement to deliver the goods only to the defendant. That about the same day the plaintiffs delivered to the defendant a written bill of sale, dated September 14, 1857, signed by themselves, saying that J. B. Fellows bought of Theodore Bayaud & Co. 496 casks of wine, called Burgundy Port, at 40 cents per gallon, (subject to duties,) amounting to $7,280 00, for which payment was acknowledged.

Some of this wine was afterwards surrendered, amounting in value to $3,000, and the remainder is now in custody of the defendant, who claims that he is the real owner, by virtue of the bill of sale referred to, which is contested by the plaintiffs, they alleging that the bill of sale was merely a pledge, and not a sale, and that the defendant was aware of the fact, and has never paid the value of the liquor.

The case was tried in December of 1857 and judgment given for the plaintiffs; whereupon, in April, 1858, a motion was made before Judge SUTHERLAND for an injunction and receiver. The motion was granted and the injunction ordered. Appeal was taken to the General Term and in October a decision was [illegible] SUTHERLAND concurring. Motion is now again made before Judge SUTHERLAND, for a receiver, on the ground that the General Term made the decision upon matters not argued, and upon allegations of conversations not stated in the former papers in the case. The argument is still pending.

Mr. LaRoque for plaintiffs; and R. Busteed for defendants.

THE NEW-HAVEN RAILROAD CASE.

The motion of the New-York and New-Haven Railroad Company to stay proceedings in several actions commenced against the Company by Cornelius Vanderbilt, Dennistoun Wood & Co., until the trial of the main action brought by the Company against Schuyler and 325 others, was on again to-day, and was further argued, but no decision reached.

It is stated that with a view to facilitate the speedy trial of the main suit, the omnibus suit, so-called, the plaintiffs have offered to the attorneys of all defendants who have appeared, to enter into a written stipulation, the main provisions of which are briefly as follows:

That any defendant may recoup, or set up any counter-claim.

That plaintiffs will not contest any counter-claim put in under oath, unless they give notice in writing of intending to contest it within a certain time.

That the judgment shall not only determine plaintiffs' rights, but the rights and claims of all the defendants, jointly as well as severally, against the plaintiffs in respect of all their set-offs and counter-claims founded upon the stock certificates, or transfers, and of the transactions in which they received or hold them; and if necessary shall embrace separate judgments for or against each defendant, as the case may require in the judgment of the Court or the Referees trying the cause.

That the trial shall be by Referees or by the Court at Special Term, and shall commence on the first Monday of October next, if possible.

That suits commenced by any of defendants against the plaintiffs shall be stayed.

W. C. Noyes, for the New-York and New-Haven Railroad Company; Messrs. Burrill, D. D. Lord, Evarts, H. F. Clarke, —— Dickinson, A. Mann, Jr., Van Winkle, Rapallo and Cutting, for the various other parties.

SURROGATE'S COURT.

WILL OF JOSEPHINE M. [illegible].

This will was contested on the ground of its informal execution. The deceased was a young lady, and two of her female friends were the witnesses. The testatrix merely asked them to sign a paper, but she did not say it was a will, at the time it was executed. The witnesses signed it at her request, and supposed it was a will.

The testatrix being only eighteen years of age could not dispose of her personal estate by will. Subsequently the testatrix reëxecuted the will before other witnesses, and complied with all the requirements of the statute.

The Surrogate admitted the will to probate, and directed letters testamentary to be issued to the executor named in the will.

Abraham Wakeman for executor; Benj. T. Dunning for contestants.

The Vandyke Contract with Nicaragua.

OFFICE OF THE AMERICAN ATLANTIC AND PACIFIC SHIP CANAL COMPANY, No. 3 Bowling-green, June 3, 1859.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

An article having appeared in the New-York morning Express of this day, stating that "the Government of Nicaragua has confirmed the contract of VANDYKE and WALLACE according to the view of its Minister in Washington, Gen. JEREZ," the undersigned, accompanied by N. H. WOLFE, Esq., another Director of this Company, this day called personally on Gen. JEREZ, the Nicaraguan Minister, now in this City, and inquired of him if the assertion contained in the above cited paragraph was true, and if he had given the information therein contained. Gen. JEREZ thereupon replied to us that there was no foundation whatever in truth for the above cited assertion, but that, on the contrary, he, Gen. JEREZ, had informed Mr. DANIEL H. JOHNSON that the Vandyke and Wallace contract had not been confirmed by the Government of Nicaragua, and that in his (Gen. JEREZ's) opinion that contract would not be confirmed, as it was contrary to the policy of his Government.

Gen. JEREZ has authorized us to make this statement.

Respectfully yours,

J. E. BODY, Secretary.

It has hitherto been the practice of the Canadian Custom-house authorities to value the goods at the credit price with a discount off, to arrive at the cash value. Orders have recently been received by the different Collectors to abandon the practice of making the discount, and to charge duties on the full or credit price.

The foregoing report is based on information obtained, to-day, mainly from the following parties: Thomas E. Way, stands Nos. [illegible]

[illegible]

GENERAL MARKETS.

NEW-YORK, Friday, June 3, 1859—6 P. M. The receipts of the principal kinds of Produce, since our last, have been: 7 bbls. Ashes; [illegible] bbls. Flour; 320 bbls. Corn Meal; 600 bushels Wheat; [illegible] bushels Oats; 158 pkgs. Provisions; and [illegible] pkgs. [illegible].

ASHES—Sales to-day, 60 bbls. Pots, at $5 50, and small lots of Pearls, at $5 75 ℔ 100 lbs.

COFFEE—Sales to-day, 300 mats Java, at 16½c.; 150 bags Costa Rica and 60 bags Jamaica, on private terms; also, small lots of St. Domingo, at 9½c.@[illegible] ℔ lb.

COCOA—Sales 150 bags St. Domingo on private terms.

COTTON—Is in slack demand, at drooping prices. Sales have been confined to 350 bales, at yesterday's figures.

FISH—The principal kinds have been very lightly dealt in, at prices within our previous range.

FLOUR AND MEAL—The market has been unusually dull, to-day, for State and Western Flour. Though most holders have been disposed to make concessions to buyers, there have been reluctant to purchase freely. Prices have declined 5c. @10c. ℔ bbl. Sales have been confined to 4,000 bbls.

Unsound Flour, ℔ bbl.	$4 00@$5 25
Superfine State	5 20@5 40
[illegible] State	5 50@5 70
[illegible]	6 00@7 20
[illegible] Superior Western	5 45@5 70
[illegible] Western	5 75@ —
[illegible]	5 90@6 25
Extra Ohio, poor to good shipping	7 20@7 50
Extra Ohio, trade brands	7 55@9 50
Fancy Genesee	7 20@7 50
Extra Genesee	7 75@9 10
[illegible] to choice Extra Missouri	7 90@10 00
Low to very choice extra Tennessee	7 90@10 50

Southern Flour continues quiet and languid. Sales have been reported of only 1,150 bbls., in lots, at $7 [illegible]@$7 75 for mixed brands, and $7 80@$9 50 for low fancy to very choice extra brands, ℔ bbl. Rye Flour is inactive at $4@$5 50 for fine and superfine, ℔ bbl. Corn Meal is in less demand, at $4 20@$4 25 for Jersey, and $4 50@$4 [illegible] for Brandywine, ℔ bbl.

GRAIN—Wheat has been very quiet. Holders are reluctant to reduce their prices to suit the views of the principal purchasers. Hence the very limited movements to-day, not exceeding 5,000 bushels, including good red Western, (Winter,) at $1 75; poor to good Milwaukee Club, at $1 [illegible]; choice prime white Southern, at $2; and good to prime red do., at $1 [illegible] ℔ bushel. Corn is heavy, lower, and declining; sales have been reported of 16,000 bushels, at 80c.@81½c. for ord. to good round yellow, [illegible] for ordinary to good yellow Jersey and Southern; 80c.@[illegible] for poor to good white Southern; and 80c.@[illegible], chiefly 83c., for mixed Western, ℔ bushel. Rye is in moderate request at former rates; sales to-day 4,500 bushels at 93c.@91 ℔ bushel. Barley is quiet and languid; sales have been confined to 3,500 bushels Old State at 65c. ℔ bushel; sales were also reported of 2,500 bushels Malt on private terms. Oats are less sought after and are a shade easier—Canadian, 50c.@[illegible]; Western, 55c.@57c.; State [illegible] ℔ bushel. Mr. WM. G. CURRIE notices the week's business, in the principal kinds of Breadstuffs, thus: "The market for State and Western Flour was more active during the early part of the week at an advanced price of 15c.@25c. ℔ bbl. Within the past few days, however, and since the receipt of the foreign news by the Arabia, there has been less animation, and a part of the advance obtained previously has been lost. The demand has been confined mainly to the local and Eastern trade, speculators having manifested little or no disposition to operate. Yesterday's transactions were limited, and the market quite dull at a further decline. Southern Flour has been somewhat inactive and prices unchanged. The market for Wheat has exhibited no material change, the quietness referred to in our last report has characterized the business of the present week, and prices generally have been essentially unaltered. In order to sell freely, holders would be obliged to reduce their asking prices materially. The demand has been mostly from millers, and from the Eastern and interior trade, who have been buying only to supply their immediate wants. The transactions yesterday were to a very limited extent, the market closing quiet and nominal. The receipts of Corn have been liberal, and prices have declined. There has been a fair demand from the Eastern trade, with some little speculative inquiry."

HAY—Sales 2,100 bales North River, at 65c.@70c. ℔ 100 lbs.

HIDES—The market is dull. The heavy receipts have had a tendency to check operations, and to effect sales prices would have to be reduced. The trade have well supplied themselves, and will not operate unless at much lower rates. The stock is large and accumulating. The principal sales have been 2,000 Buenos Ayres and Montevideo, at 26½c.@27c.; 1,300 Orinoco, [illegible], 6 mos.; 1,000 Texas, 19c., do.; 1,000 Payta, 20c., do.; 800 Savanilla, 17½c., do.; 300 Orinoco, 24c., do.

IRON—The transactions have been moderate at essentially unchanged prices.

LEATHER—The stock of Sole is small and poorly assorted; prime middle and light weights, especially, are scarce. Prices are firm, and favor sellers. The week's movements have been as follows:

	Sole.
	Hemlock.	Oak.
Receipts, sides	63,600	6,000
Sales, sides	66,400	8,100
Stock on the close	45,900	2,700

MOLASSES—Sales, to-day, small lots of New-Orleans at 42c.@44c.; 30 hhds. and 60 bbls. Porto Rico on private terms; 50 hhds. and 90 bbls. Cuba Muscovado at 40c.; and 27 hhds. Clayed Cuba at 24c., ℔ gallon.

NAVAL STORES—Crude Turpentine is quiet and nominal. Spirits Turpentine has been purchased to the extent of 750 bbls., in lots, at 47c. for Merchantable, and 47½c. for Shipping, to arrive; also, 49c.@49½c. for Merchantable and Shipping, here. Tar is inactive, yet steady. Rosin, especially common, is in lively request at buoyant prices. Included in the reported sales were 4,700 bbls. Common, chiefly to arrive, at $1 75@$1 80, mainly at $1 75, ℔ 310 lbs.; also, 1,100 bbls. Medium and Fine, in lots, at proportionate rates.

OILS—Whale, Sperm, and Linseed have been rather more sought after at previous figures. Nothing really new in other descriptions.

PROVISIONS—Pork is depressed and lower; sales have been reported of 4,000 bbls., in lots, at $16 75@$16 87 for Mess, $19 [illegible]@$19 50 for Clear; $14 75 for Prime, here; and $15 for Prime, deliverable within 60 days, and buyer's option, to July. Cut Meats continue plenty and heavy, including Hams at 9½c.@9c., and Shoulders at 7c.@7½c. ℔ lb. Bacon is inactive, chiefly at 9c.@11c. ℔ lb. Lard is in less demand at languid rates. Sales, to-day, 400 tcs. and bbls., in lots, at 11¼c.@12c. ℔ lb. Beef is plenty and declining. Sales 750 bbls., in lots, at $9 75@$14 for repacked Western Mess, $14 [illegible]@$16 for fair to choice extra do.; $9 [illegible]@$10 [illegible] for Country Mess, and $6 [illegible]@$7 [illegible] for do. Prime, ℔ bbl. Prime Mess Beef, $17@$[illegible] ℔ tc. Beef Hams, $15@$18 ℔ bbl. Butter is in request at 16c.@20c. for New State; 15c.@18c. for New Ohio ℔ lb. New Cheese is in demand, mainly at from 6c.@9½c. ℔ lb.

RICE—Sales have been reported to-day, of 180 tcs., in lots, at $4@$4 75 ℔ 100 lbs.

SUGARS—Have been actively sought after to-day, and sales have been made of 200 hhds. Cuba, nearly all at 6¼c.@6¾c.; 185 hhds. Porto Rico, at 6c.@6¾c.; and (reported) an invoice of Brazil, on terms not ascertained.

TEAS—The public sale to-day was spiritless and unsatisfactory, especially for blacks, most of which were withdrawn. The lots sold included, Hyson, 38c.; Young Hyson, 27c.@55c.; Hyson Twankay, 24c.@32½c.; Twankay, 23½c.@26½c.; Hyson Skin, 25c.@28c.; Gunpowder, 32½c.@40c.; Imperial, 30½c.@61c.; Pekoe, 48c.; and Oolong, 28c.@40c. ℔ lb.

TOBACCO—Has been lightly dealt in, sales, since Monday last, having been confined to 36 hhds. Kentucky, at 6c.@11c.; 154 cases Seed Leaf, at 6c.@20c.; with 110 bales Havana, and 79 bales Yara, on private terms.

WHISKY—Sales have been reported of 180 bbls., in lots, at 25c. ℔ gallon.

FREIGHTS—For Liverpool, there were taken 1,000 bales Cotton at ¼c. ℔ lb.; 300 tierces Beef and 100 boxes Bacon on private terms; 100 hhds. Shoulders at [illegible]; and 500 boxes cheese, by steamer, at 30s. For London, a British brig, with Naval Stores, on private terms. For Bordeaux, a vessel with heavy pipe staves, on terms not ascertained. For Liverpool, a ship from St. Johns, with Deals at £3.

MUSICAL.

THE DRIGGS PATENT PIANO-FORTE,
OR THE VIOLIN PIANO.
It is built upon an iron frame, or bed plate, entirely separate from the case, thus relieving the sound-boards and every other part of the instrument from the strain.
It will remain in tune for many months, and when the strings are settled even for years.
It has convex sounding-boards above and below, like the violin, which are connected together in the same manner, thus making the entire instrument a vibratory shell.
It has greater depth and fullness of tone, and its sostenuto, or power of sustaining the tone, has never been equaled, except by instruments of the violin class.
It improves with age and use, becoming more vibratory, and the tone purer and more sonorous.
It is the best piano-forte existing, and is recommended by Gottschalk, Thalberg, and many other celebrated artists and professors. Sole Agents,
WM. HALL & SON, No. 543 Broadway,
Between Spring and Prince sts.

THE SABBATH-SCHOOL BELL—THIRTY THOUSAND ISSUED IN FIVE MONTHS.—The unprecedented sale of this Book has induced the publisher to add some 30 new Tunes and Hymns to its present size, without extra charge, except on the cheap edition. Among the many beautiful Tunes and Hymns added may be found, "I ought to Love my Mother," "Oh, I'll be a good Child, indeed I will," and "Sister and I." These and eight others from the original Bell, were sung at the Anniversary of the New-York City Sunday-School Society of the M. E. Church at the Academy of Music, May 31, with great applause. THE BELL contains nearly 200 Tunes and Hymns, and is one of the best collections ever issued. Price 13c.; $1 20 per dozen; $10 per 100; postage, 1c. Bound, 20c.; $2 per dozen; $15 per 100. Elegantly bound, embossed gilt, 25c.; $2 50 per dozen; $20 per 100; postage, 3c. each. THE BELL is also published in small numbers, entitled ANNIVERSARY AND SUNDAY-SCHOOL MUSIC BOOKS, Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, in order to accommodate the million; price 3c. and 4c. each, or $2 and $3 per 100. More than 300,000 of the above books have been sold the past year, and the demand is rapidly increasing.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

TO THOSE SEEKING INVESTMENT.—Rights in the State of New-York and various Western States for "DANIELS' PATENT GRANULAR FUEL." This fuel is used in nearly all New-England, and gives a saving of 40 per cent. over split pine or charcoal, and is the cheapest Summer fuel known. No business in the country is paying better, or in a safer manner. References of the very highest standing given as to value as an investment. Apply to GEO. S. SHELDON, Esq., No. 116 Wall-st., New-York.

$5,000.—PARTNER WANTED, WITH this amount in cash in a successful patent medicine business, which has been thoroughly established several years in this country and Europe. Want of capital is not the reason for taking a partner. That this is the best chance for investment ever offered will be shown upon investigation. Address O. P. B., Box No. 117 Times Office.

$20,000.—WANTED, A PARTNER WITH this amount of capital to invest in the manufacture of cotton goods. The object is to secure the services of a competent business man to attend to the interest of the company in this City. The best of references given and required. Address A. E. D., Box No. 114 Times Office.

TO PRINTERS.—WANTED, A GOOD SECOND-hand Standing Press, large enough to press double-medium sheets. A little smaller might answer. Also, a second-hand Washington Press, of large size. Hammond preferred. Inquire of [illegible] & CO., No. 38 Gold-st.

NEWSPAPER FOR SALE.—A DAILY AND weekly newspaper in New-England, with excellent advertising, &c.; good job-office attached; it will be sold cheap. For further particulars address NEWSPAPER, Boston, Mass.

WANTED—AN HONEST, ENTERPRISING MAN to take an interest in patenting and introducing several useful inventions. The patents guaranteed. Undoubted reference given and required. Address E. T. Z., Box No. 67 Brooklyn, N. Y.

WORTH ATTENDING TO.—IN EXCHANGE will be given the stock and fixtures of a thread and needle fancy store, many years established, for a house and lot in the City or suburbs, or a country place worth $5,000 to $6,000. Inquire at No. 35 2d-av.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Royal Mail steamship America arrived at Boston about noon yesterday, and her mails, forwarded over the New-Haven road, reached this City at midnight. The summary of her news, as received by telegraph from Sackville, and published yesterday morning, embodied briefly all intelligence relative to the actual movements of the belligerent forces in Italy; but we find in our files details of the first importance, which we give this morning in as voluminous a manner as the time will permit.

By the arrival of the Overland Mail, we have received our California correspondence to May 9—[illegible] days later. The news is not important. By the previous arrival, we received intelligence of the close of the war in the Mohave country, and that news is confirmed. General CLARKE had returned to San Francisco. A severe drouth prevailed in Lower California, and a destructive fire was raging at Mokelumne Hill as the mail was leaving. There is nothing later from other points on the Pacific.

The rules for the management of the new Museum of Comparative Zoology in Boston have been mutually agreed upon between the State, Harvard College, and the donors to the Institution. The organization is such as to give all the donors a voice in the management. The Board of Trustees consists of 15 members, among whom are the State officers, ex officio Prof. AGASSIZ, WM. GRAY, and President WALKER.

MICHAEL O'BRIAN, an elderly man, who murdered his wife at Cohoes, by kicking and beating her to death, was executed at Albany yesterday. O'BRIAN was between 50 and 60 years of age. The services of the Catholic Church were read at the gallows, and the execution took place within the jail, before about 300 people. The prisoner died almost without a struggle.

Two murders and an assault are chronicled in our columns this morning. An Irishman named O'ROURKE brutally kicked his wife to death last evening in the Eighth Ward. He was arrested. At a sailor boarding-house in Water-street, where a party of low characters had collected for a carouse, one of them was fatally stabbed. The murderer was not arrested. Two women of the town got into a dispute in Water-street last night, when one of them struck the other with a tumbler, and inflicted a probably fatal wound.

A violent thunder storm broke over Albany on Thursday night. One of the buildings belonging to the Central Railroad, and used for the storage of freight, was struck by lightning. The roof was melted and some of the wall destroyed, but owing to the character of the building, no fire occurred, and no other damage of consequence was done. The storm reached this City last evening, and continued, with slight intermission, all night. It was not so violent, however, in its character, though there was considerable thunder and lightning.

In the case of the slave-girl AMY, convicted at Richmond, Va., of robbing the United States Mail, Chief Justice TANEY has denied a motion for a reversal of sentence, the plea being that AMY, as a slave, was not amenable to the penalties of the law, and decides that slaves are subject to punishment under the laws of the United States.

The inaugural meeting of the Union Association, under the management of the Union Jockey Club, was commenced at the Eclipse Course, L. I., yesterday. The attendance was not exceedingly large, owing probably to the unsettled weather. [illegible]

Stocks and Stock-Values.

It is quite time that the public, who have a deeper interest after all in the matter than any individuals possibly can have, should take the pains to find out for themselves whether the habits and customs of the Stock Exchange favor or thwart the just appreciation of stock-values by the community at large.

There can be no doubt that for many months past the prevalent tendency of all stock-values in the close market of Wall street has been to depreciation; that with a few exceptions this has been the destiny of all the stocks usually dealt in at the Board of Brokers, and representing an enormous aggregate of property really invested and involving, therefore, the real interests of great numbers of persons to whom Wall street is but the shadow of a name, or as we may more truly say, the name of a shadow, which has darkened their homes and obscured their future. This fact is in and of itself worth noting and deserves explanation. It may indicate a real and general decline in the intrinsic worth of all corporate securities throughout the country, or at least of all those corporate securities in which the stock-buyers and stock-sellers of New-York habitually deal, or it may not. If one considers the matter from the point of view of the general condition of the United States, it will not be easy to understand why corporate properties alone should be excluded from participation in the general return of prosperity which has followed our recovery from the prostration of 1857. After making all necessary allowance for the mismanagement by fiduciary agents of the interests confided to their keeping, and for the burdens imposed by the financial blunders of the past upon great corporate properties of all kinds, there will still remain the positive and unmanageable fact that a certain sum of values has been invested in enterprises which have more or less vital relations to the great body of our national activity; and the inevitable inference that with the undeniable quickening of that national activity in all its departments, these enterprises ought naturally rather to recover a portion of the vigor they may have lost than to go on losing more. Nothing certainly could be plainer, for instance, than that the railways which link the Atlantic with the West have been subjected to a very questionable policy of management. The simple fact that in the month of April, 1859, the receipts of four great lines, the New-York Central, the Erie, the Pennsylvania Central and the Baltimore and Ohio fall in the aggregate more than half a million of dollars short of the aggregate receipts of the same roads during the same month of the year 1858, although the Spring of 1858 was confessedly a less prosperous season than the Spring of 1859, sufficiently illustrates the ruinous effects of the senseless system of competition which has been been maintained between those roads. Yet the depreciation in the quoted values of the stocks of one or another of these roads, as a resort to the statistics of the question would prove, has not been proportioned to the real damage done to the road by this competition. In the case of the Erie Railroad, for example, and even more conspicuously, perhaps, in the case of the New-York Central, this depreciation has been exaggerated beyond all the limits of rational inference. Spasms of depreciation in other stock values have been once and again observed to react suddenly and vehemently upon those particular stocks, as well as upon the whole stock market; and reactions of this kind, at least, cannot be reasonably traced to the legitimate operation of legitimate influences. There is certainly no more natural connection between a fall in the value of Missouri lead mines and a fall in the value of New-York railways, than between a fall in the value of peaches and a fall in the value of potatoes. That both articles happen to be exposed for sale in the same market-place may account for, but cannot justify, their coincident depreciation. The fact, whenever it occurs, tends, if rightly judged, to throw doubt not on the value of the articles affected, but on the capacity or honesty of the dealers.

It is our own belief, founded on a careful consideration of the history of Wall-street throughout the past season, that in the main the characteristic downward tendencies of that season are traceable rather to what may be styled the sympathetic action of the Brokers' Board, than to any external causes whatever. We admit freely and fully the existence of many circumstances which might justly breed caution, and even distrust, in the minds of honest buyers in regard to certain special kinds of stock-values, and to certain special stocks of these kinds. We admit, also, the existence of more influences fitted to excite a general feeling of uncertainty and depression in regard to such values. The cloudy atmosphere of European politics and finances; the bewildering behavior of the great European money-centres, in the presence of events, of which the world of finance can hardly be blamed perhaps for failing fully to comprehend the bearing and the significance; the remembrance of wounds received in the crash of two years ago; the ill-behavior of many boards of direction; the natural disposition to await the development of the national harvests; these have all had their weight in keeping down the buoyant spirit of adventure. But behind and within all these considerations, and making use of them all after its own mind, we cannot avoid recognizing the presence of a persistent spirit of speculative depreciation, which has never relaxed its efforts; which has been instant in season and out of season to exaggerate all rumors of mischief, to make darker all dark oracles, to breathe despondency into the desponding; to interpret all things in the saddest sense. The railway-values of New-York have of course been the favorite machinery of which this spirit has made use to accomplish its designs, but they have not been, nor will they be, its only resort. It was but the other day, that in the money-article of one of our City cotemporaries the following passage occurred, used, of course, with the most perfect unconsciousness, but in that unconscious use, doubly significant of the mental habit of the "Street:" "American Exchange Bank, which was hammered yesterday to 101½ for the purpose of affecting the general market, sold up to 102½."

The unsophisticated reader whose eye may have rested upon this statement must have been slightly puzzled to understand, in the first place, by what process Bank stock could be hammered, and in the second place why the hammering of Bank stock should affect the general market. But the thing is very simple. "Hammering" in the argot of Wall-street is simply the joint assault of a conspiracy of sellers upon a particular stock, for the purpose of producing an impression that there is something "rotten in the State," and that therefore the value of that stock has really declined. Of course, the success of such an operation must depend [illegible] value of the stock is unprotected by the Board, or represented in its transactions. Railway properties, by their very vastness and the extent of their stock-list, would be especially liable, in the most flourishing times, to such assaults. Great mining companies, for the same reason are continually laid upon the anvil. The stocks of Banks in the City are protected, ordinarily, by the presence and mere pressure of those really interested in them. Yet, as we see in the case just cited, Bank stocks themselves are not always safe. Nothing would be easier, in the event of a great disturbance of our foreign exchanges, of a sudden and vehement drain of gold, or of any other occurrence calculated to shake public confidence, even though it should not really impair the substantial prosperity of the country, than for a resolute combination to "hammer" the Bank stocks of this City as flat as if a depreciated Erie locomotive had crushed them. Of the demoralizing effects of such combinations upon those engaged in them we need hardly speak. A more desperate trade civilized men could hardly take up, involving as it does a perpetual speculation in the misfortunes, losses and calamities of hundreds and thousands of innocent persons. The hideous calling of the wrecker in the olden time, on the wild coasts of Cornwall or of Brittany, was scarcely more inhuman than this. How the law can interfere to arrest its development may be a matter of question. It cannot be a matter of question, however, that the respectable members of the Brokers' Board owe it to themselves to exert all their influence for putting a stop to this traffic in dishonor and distress. Until this shall be done, the public must remember that the quotations of stocks made at the Board of Brokers can in very few cases be accepted as indications either of the present or the prospective state of the values passed upon. It is always in their power to "hammer" the "hammerers" by a little sound discretion and a little independent investigation into the affairs of their own country.

The Press and the Telegraphs.

Our readers must have observed with chagrin that ever since the news from Europe was made more than usually interesting and important by the opening of a great war in Italy, unusual delay has occurred in its transmission from Halifax, whenever it has arrived there by the fortnightly Cunard steamer. To put the matter plainly; for some time past as regularly as the steamer has been signalled, a dispatch like the following has reached us: "The Nova Scotia line being in a league with the speculators, the details of intelligence will be forwarded as soon as a horse express can carry them from Halifax to Sackville." Considering the really tremendous moment to thousands of business men in this country of each week's news from Europe, a delay of six hours even so rarely as once a fortnight, is something more than flesh and blood can be expected quietly to submit to, particularly when we learn that it is intended that this delay shall accrue to the benefit of some one or more particularly favored firms.

The facts of the case are as follows: When the Nova Scotia line was established by the Colonial Government, it entered into a contract to transmit the European news brought by the fortnightly steamer to Halifax to the Associated Press of this City, before any other dispatches were forwarded, at the rate of seventy-five dollars per one thousand words.

When the line passed into the hands of the present Company, it immediately, in spite of the protestations and remonstrances of the Associated Press, in spite of the tariff previously arranged with the latter, and on which the line at its establishment had mainly relied for support, doubled the rate, and asked the Press to pay one hundred and fifty dollars per thousand words. In other words, the Company, finding that it had a monopoly of the means of transmitting intelligence once a fortnight, which the public was anxious to receive as early as possible, determined to charge what it pleased for the work. The Associated Press was at its mercy, and it showed, in the most unmistakable manner, what were its notions of good faith and fair-dealing.

From this moment, of course, the Associated Press was released from all other obligations than those imposed by law and by common honesty, and it took the earliest opportunity of benefiting both itself and the public by getting the news in another and speedier way. When a knavish storekeeper, with whom one has been dealing for years, takes advantage of your necessity to levy extortions upon you, you do not feel bound to submit to those extortions one minute longer than you can help; and you avail yourself as soon as you can of any other avenue that may offer of supplying your wants. You are doubly impelled to this course, when, as in the case before us, your remonstrances are treated with contemptuous indifference.

The Associated Press accordingly, early in 1858, sent a yacht to Cape Race to intercept the steamers off Cape Race, and telegraph their news on to New-York before they reached Halifax. The public was thus supplied with what it wanted to know a day sooner than if it had to wait for the transmission of the news from Halifax, and the Associated Press was partially delivered from the extortions of the Nova Scotia line. As a consequence of this arrangement, whenever the news yacht secured the news off Cape Race, the Press refused to pay for its subsequent transmission over the wires from Halifax anything more than the ordinary rates charged to everybody else, and this for the simple reason that the news was already well known, fortified by the consideration which, apparently, nobody can appreciate better than the Nova Scotia Company, that they were not obliged to do so.

A furious correspondence, for which we have no room to-day, followed, and finally the Nova Scotia line refused to telegraph any news whatever for the Associated Press in advance of other communications. The Press proposed a compromise, by offering to abandon their exclusive privileges and submit to the operation of the well-known telegraphic rule—"first come, first served." To this most reasonable proposition the Company likewise refused to accede. They insisted that, no matter whether the Halifax steamers' news was stale or not, no matter if it had become, a week before, but a twice-told tale in New-York, the Press should still go through with the expensive farce of paying treble rates for it as "early and exclusive intelligence." The Press, however, this time had the heathen on the hip, and declined going through this performance.

If the Nova Scotia Line had now flown into a fit of honest indignation, and, despairing of extorting anything more out of the Newspapers, had settled down to the humbler and less profitable task of forwarding the dispatches of private individuals in the order of their reception, no one would have seriously blamed it. This, however, was much too [illegible] minutes or forty [illegible] So they [illegible] with a certain speculating firm, to which they conceded the right to telegraph war news for their private purposes over the line in advance both of the Press and of everybody else. They thus, with characteristic ingenuity, managed to avenge themselves on the Associated Press, to exasperate and wrong the public, and to promote gambling in the money market.

Happily, the American Telegraph Company has had honor and decency enough not to fall in with this arrangement. This Company conceives that its first duty is due to the public, and that it is bound to see, as far as it can, that the monopoly which the public lines granted it, is not used in the interest of stock-gamblers. It has, accordingly, refused either to buy the speculative contract, as the worthy President of the Nova Scotia line recommended it to do, or to transmit the news for the special benefit of the eminent firm in question, in advance of everybody else. Now, as everything has to come over the American Telegraph wires everything has to wait until the news of the Associated Press has passed over their line.

So the matter stands at present. What the chances are of a return to honest dealing and right reason on the part of the Nova Scotia line, our readers can judge as well as we.

Ungrateful Yankees.

The State of Massachusetts had a claim against the General Government for the services of its militia during the last war with Great Britain, which had been pressed for payment, without success, for more than forty years. During that time all the great men of Massachusetts, who represented that State in the National Councils, had in vain endeavored to get the little account settled. ADAMS, WEBSTER, EVERETT, CHOATE, WINTHROP and CUSHING had exerted themselves without avail, and even Governor BANKS, before he went to Congress, was sent as a special agent to Washington to obtain a settlement of the long-outstanding claim. But even he failed in his mission. All sorts of Galphin claims were settled, but there was a stern determination not to pay Massachusetts a dollar for her military services in the war of 1814. At last, as a last resort, the claim was intrusted to a gentleman named HANSCOM, who, being in Washington as a correspondent for certain newspapers, could attend to the business without being put to any extra expense, and the great Commonwealth bargained with him that, if he succeeded in getting the claim settled, they would pay him a reasonable sum; but if he did not succeed he was not to have any pay for his services. He did succeed. By some means or other he obtained a settlement of the claim—something more than a hundred thousand dollars—and the Governor and Council of the State awarded him a commission of five per cent as a compensation for his services; by no means an extravagant commission for the recovery of a debt which could not have been sold to a speculator for fifty per cent discount a month before Congress made the appropriation for its payment. Since the money has been paid, and the agent has had his commission awarded him, some of the Boston papers have been complaining loudly of the extravagant commission paid for the recovery of the claim, and one of them makes the absurd objection that the agent employed was not a suitable person to be intrusted with such important business, notwithstanding that he was so successful when so many of his predecessors had so signally failed. Instead of grumbling at the payment of so exceedingly small a commission for the performance of so important a service, the Bostonians ought rather to censure the Governor and Council for not awarding a larger sum for the prompt and efficient services of their agent. Compared with the rewards which our public agents receive for their services, a commission of five per cent is a very niggardly payment. But then, Boston has not been accustomed to the Lowber-judgment style of business, which makes all the difference.

LIVERPOOL ON THE WAR.—In time of war, canards are of course in season. How they are generated, whence they come, how they obtain currency, it is not always easy to say, but they meet one at every turn, and at almost every hour of the day. Indeed, if a public journalist should devote himself during a great war exclusively to the duty and pleasure of this sort of duck-shooting, he would have his days and nights fully occupied. One of the largest and wildest canards that has flown over us since the outbreak of the present conflict, came to us yesterday from the America, in the shape of a story that the passage of the Ticino by the French troops would be regarded as the signal of a general coalition against France, and that "Austrian troops would march direct on Paris." For this enormous absurdity the Liverpool Post, a paper of no great prominence even in the provincial Press of Great Britain, is responsible, and it was probably evolved at the last moment for the special benefit of the Western World. A "general coalition" against France, is a thing perhaps to be glibly talked of at Liverpool, but not to be glibly resolved upon at London and Berlin. The idea that Russia would join in any such scheme, or that if she did, England would consent to be her ally, is simply frantic. Before the world shall see "Austrians marching direct on Paris," with an utter contempt, we suppose, of such little obstacles as the Alps, the Swiss, the Rhine, the three hundred thousand men of Marshal PELLISSIER's army, the camp at Chalons, and the fortresses of Metz and Strasbourg, the world will see a good many other sights not less interesting perhaps, and let us hope much more satisfactory to the well-wishers of mankind.

A WARNING TO WEALTHY WOOERS.—A foolish old gentleman of sixty-five, in St. Louis, who first promised to marry a young lady forty years his junior, and then refused to do so, has just been condemned by the Courts of that City to pay over to his Ariadne the sum of $100,000. The case would seem upon the evidence to have been tolerably clear; less fortunate than Theseus, the venerable deceiver was arrested in his flight, and the injured young lady has found a comforter decidedly more respectable than Bacchus. Nothing can be more vivid and energetic than the style in which the victim announced her intentions to the victimizer; she set his conduct before him in its true light in a letter remarkable for its plain, vernacular phraseology, and gallant St. Louis has confirmed her decisive judgment by a judgment not less decisive of its own. The moral of the case may be differently interpreted according to the temperament and taste of the reader. Mr. Ex-Chancellor-of-the-Exchequer GLADSTONE, who has a passion for looking at everything in three lights, would probably say that it may be held to prove either that one should never live to be sixty-five years old in St. [illegible] self to a young lady [illegible] one should never have a hundred thousand dollars to be taken away from him in damages. The latter we think the more important lesson of the three. Had Mr. SHAW not been guilty of having a hundred thousand dollars, his other follies and sins might perhaps have been forgiven him.

THE DISCORDS ARE INVISIBLE.—The Albany Atlas and Argus professes itself utterly unable, after most painful scrutiny, to descry division in its party, and provides the following infallible recipe, should such a thing by any possibility occur:

"But we have a very simple method of determining the conflict as to candidates, organizations and platforms, and that is to let the Democratic Party settle it by its representatives in Convention, and then all sides abide by the decision."

We do not know why it should—but somehow the above paragraph does—remind us irresistibly of the time when the senior editor of the Atlas and Argus was on the Buffalo platform, laboring with energy and success to bring to grief the "candidates, organizations and platforms" which the Democratic Party had "settled," "by its representatives in Convention." We infer that he does not intend to do so again this year. But then others may. They may think their turn has come.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

Arrival of the Overland Mail.

Close of the Mohave War—Results of the Expedition—The Overland Mail Service—Coinage of Silver Dollars at the San Francisco Mint—Shipping.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Monday, May 9, 1859.

The steamer Uncle Sam, of the Opposition Line, did not arrive here until Saturday last, bringing the passengers who left New-York in the Northern Light on the 11th ult. Notwithstanding their long and disagreeable voyage, in second-rate ships, most of the passengers arrived in pretty good health. Mr. JOHN DANTZIG, of Linn County, Oregon, died at sea on the 16th ult., of apoplexy. He was accompanied by his son.

This mail carries the news of the close of the Mohave Indian War. Brigadier-General CLARKE and Staff arrived here on Saturday evening in the steamer Senator, from Los Angeles, quite satisfied that the object of the Expedition into the Mohave country had been gained. The dispatches from Col. HOFFMAN, in command, are to the 24th of April. On the previous day six of the Chiefs, with a large number of their people, presented themselves in camp, in obedience to the commands of Col. HOFFMAN, sent out through Indian runners. Their air and manner were very abject, and it was evident that, invincible as they have ever been against any enemy heretofore met, they were completely awed by the appearance of so large a body of well-armed troops, and evidently were in constant dread of chastisement. After the usual preliminaries had been observed, and the troops disposed so as to completely encircle the camp and prevent escape, Colonel HOFFMAN proceeded to tell the savages that he had come to punish them for their outrages upon emigrants and their attack upon his own escort in January last, unless they agreed to fulfil rigidly certain terms which he would stipulate. He then demanded that they should make no opposition to the establishing of military posts in, and roads through, their country, and that they should not molest in any way, white travelers among them. As surety for the fulfillment of these conditions, he demanded that one of their number from each band, together with their families, should be given up and go to Fort Yuma, and there be detained as hostages until the General at San Francisco is satisfied that the Mohaves will continue to live in peace with their white brethren. If they refused to select and give up these hostages, the Colonel stated that he would select them himself. He also demanded the surrender of the Chief who led the attack upon his command last January, and three of those engaged in the massacre of the emigrants, to be dealt with as justice might demand.

Six Chiefs at once voluntarily offered themselves as hostages, overjoyed probably at the idea of having a good time at the fort, and plenty to eat, for the poor devils are generally half starved. One of those who thus surrendered acknowledged that he led the attack on Col. HOFFMAN. They stated, however, that the attack upon the emigrants was made by the Walu-pies, and that only seven Mohaves were engaged in it, all of whom were killed. They gave up three of their own number, however, to go to Fort Yuma; so good a chance was not to be lost by the hungry wretches. The Colonel selected nine hostages in all, one of whom is a principal chief, two are sons of chiefs, and the rest their relatives. The utter abjectness of the Indians in the presence of the troops gives reason to hope that they will be cautious in the future. A military post will be established among them, although the country is almost a perfect desert, and the place selected for the fort by the War Department is stated to be unfit for anything to live in, except beavers. Two Companies of the Sixth Infantry, under Major ARMISTEAD, and a detachment of the Third Artillery, under Lieut. TIPTON, will constitute the garrison at present. The remaining four Companies of the Sixth were to proceed to San Francisco, via San Bernardino, a distance of over 300 miles. Captain BURTON's Company of Third Artillery return to Fort Yuma with the hostages.

Quite an effort has been making here during the last ten days to induce correspondents generally to send letters by the overland mail leaving here to-day, for the purpose of practically showing the value of the overland service. It is not improbable, therefore, that this stage will carry a large mail, each missive in which is expected to be a reminder to Congress and the public at large of the importance of fostering this service. There can be no doubt of the importance of these overland routes in affording additional mail facilities between the two sides of the continent; but they have an element of value far higher, in the influence they exert in opening up the country, making good routes for emigrant travel, promoting lines of settlement, and thus binding the States of the Atlantic and of the Pacific more closely together. It would be folly to rely exclusively upon their value as a mail service for the success of the overland routes, for if they were compelled to carry the mail now carried by steamer via Panama it would break the lines down inevitably unless Congress would double or treble the appropriations.

The news of the success of Mr. PHELAN in the great billiard match was received with great rejoicing here, where the victor has many acquaintances and friends. Mr. HUGHES, the agent of Mr. PHELAN in California, got up quite a jollification over the news, and a salute was fired in honor of the event.

Mr. JAMES E. LEONARD, from New York City, has been carried to the State Asylum for the Insane at Stockton, having been found laboring under decided symptoms of mental aberration. The unfortunate man is a billiard table manufacturer, and arrived here a few days ago as a cabin passenger on board the ship Palestine from Melbourne, Australia, bringing with him three tables, which have been taken charge of by Messrs. [illegible] & [illegible], consignees of the ship, who will dispose of them for his benefit. From papers found upon his person, it appears that he has been a captain in the 80th Regiment of New York State Militia, and a Royal Arch Mason and member of the Zetland Chapter. Members of the fraternity are interesting themselves in his behalf.

Another insane man, named THOMAS MANAHAN, jumped overboard from the steamer while on the way to Stockton, and was lost. I have not learned from whence he came to California, but believe he was an Irishman.

Our branch mint is now turning out large quantities of silver dollars, for use in the China trade. This coin is worth seven and a half cents more than two half dollars, and of course will not enter into circulation in the United States. They are not coined by the mint for circulation; but only for merchants who furnish their own bullion, and who can afford to stand the excess of 7½ per cent. over the regular standard, because they have been compelled to pay 12 per cent. heretofore for Mexican dollars for the China trade, and found it difficult to get them at that.

The "Dashaways" is the name of a new temperance association, somewhat after the order of the "Washingtonians," recently started here by Howard Engine Company. Their pledge of total abstinence only extends to the 15th of June next, but the most if not all of the members intend at that time to make it irrevocable. The members are agitating the establishment of an asylum for the inebriate, and are already carrying on the operations of such an establishment upon a small scale. Among those who took the pledge at their meeting last evening was ex-Governor McDOUGAL, who has been a pretty hard case in the tippling line.

At a charter election, held at Los Angeles on the 2d inst., the ticket of the Administration Democracy was defeated. D. MARCHESSAULT was elected Mayor, H. N. ALEXANDER, Treasurer; J. H. LANDER, Attorney; W. H. PETERSON, Assessor.

The ships James Browne and Santa Clara have arrived from Hong Kong, and the clipper-ship [illegible]

Great Fire in Iowa.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
DUBUQUE, Iowa, May 23, 1859.

Messrs. S. HERRING & Co., New-York—Gentlemen: The "Champion" Safe which I purchased of you last season, through H. A. McClure, Esq., your Agent in this city, has just passed through as severe a test as any safe will probably ever be subjected to in any conflagration. It was in the centre of my office, on the second floor of the "Odd-Fellows' Hall" Building, in this place, which was totally consumed, night before last, and was exposed, for a long time, to the most intense heat, dropping finally into the cellar, where it was buried by the falling walls, without being broken or crushed. Yesterday it was exhumed, still very hot, and I felt great anxiety to know its condition, containing, as it did, money to the amount of several hundred dollars, mostly in bank-notes; land-warrants, worth several thousand dollars, besides notes of hand and other valuable papers and books. This morning it was opened, and to my great satisfaction all the papers, &c., were found uninjured and perfect in every respect. I heartily congratulate you, as the manufacturers, and myself, as the possessor, of that which may truly and emphatically be called a Safe.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
ALEX. D. ANDERSON, Register.

DR. J. H. ROBINSON [illegible]

THE NEW-YORK MERCURY.

ANOTHER GREAT ENGAGEMENT.

The proprietors of the NEW-YORK MERCURY respectfully announce the engagement of the celebrated author, Dr. J. H. ROBINSON, universally acknowledged to be the only truthful delineator of FAR WESTERN TRAPPER LIFE.

His Opening Tale for THE MERCURY is now nearly completed, and he believes it to be the best he has yet written. The following announcement from the author's graceful pen will be greeted with enthusiasm by his tens of thousands of admirers:

A CARD.

TO THE READERS OF "BUCK BISON," "NICK WHIFFLES," "ONE-EYED SAUL," &c.

To those who have followed my heroes and heroines over the Western Trail, and to the far trapping-grounds of the Great North, I beg leave to announce that I am now engaged in preparing another Serial, the scenes of which transpire in the same wild latitudes, and which I shall endeavor to render worthy the attention of my former readers. It will be perceived that I have chosen a section of country in which daily events transcend the feeble fancies of fiction—where incident crowds upon incident, and wild adventure and daring deeds are inevitable things.

The title of my new story will be

PATHAWAY;
OR,
THE MOUNTAIN OUTLAWS.
A TALE OF THE NORTHERN TRAPPING GROUNDS.

PATHAWAY will be published in the columns of THE NEW-YORK MERCURY, to which journal I have engaged to contribute EXCLUSIVELY for a term of years. To my numerous readers I would return my sincere thanks, and shall ever hold in grateful remembrance those who, by their partiality and favor, have contributed to my success. If we do not jog along together as heretofore, mutually pleased with each other, I trust it will not be through want of effort on my part to continue to merit their approbation. Those who have taken an interest in the "dimikilties" of Nick Whiffles—a character pretty extensively known—may very possibly find in PATHAWAY a character of his name and nature, whose exploits and drolleries will not shame those of other years. In short, it is my purpose to produce a story that shall excel other productions of my pen, in the novelty of its situations, in truthfulness of delineation, intricacy of plot, and rapid succession of incident.

It will be illustrated by DARLEY.

WORCESTER, May, 1859. J. H. ROBINSON.

The publishers of THE MERCURY will only add that they pay Dr. Robinson a higher price for his labors than has ever yet been paid by the newspaper Press to any American romancer, but a sense of duty to our quarter of a million readers demands his eminent services. It is our mission, by honorable competition, to excel in every department, at whatever cost, and that mission will ever be faithfully performed.

"PATHAWAY" will be commenced in THE NEW-YORK MERCURY without delay, and other novelties will follow in rapid succession.

"NOW, BY SAINT PAUL, THE WORK GOES BRAVELY ON!"

THE SUNDAY MERCURY

of to-morrow will contain, among other choice readings, No. 2 of Stephen H. Branch's amusing "ECCENTRICITIES ON EARTH AND OCEAN," in which he boldly squints at those degenerate "Times," and Little Villain, Shylock and the Doctor, and gives interesting sketches of many distinguished public characters of the Metropolis. All who buy the SUNDAY MERCURY of to-morrow will enjoy many a sacred and exhilarating laugh, direct from their hearts and lungs, and be prepared for acts of charity in their pious rambles to the altars of God.

Thus speaks Stephen

Who always eats
His cheese even.

NEW BOOKS.
PUBLISHED [illegible]

DOCTOR [illegible] NEW BOOK.
THE NEW AND THE OLD;
OR, CALIFORNIA AND INDIA IN ROMANTIC ASPECTS. By J. W. PALMER, M. D., Author of "Up and Down the Irrawaddi." Beautifully illustrated [illegible]. 12mo. $1 25.

[illegible]

"Moreover, 'The New and the Old' is a book of stories based upon veritable and remarkable experiences, mainly true as to locality, persons and events, and having all the dramatic interest of that famous 'Diary of a Physician,' for every one who has ever had father, brother, lover, or friend in California or India."

II.

A BACHELOR'S STORY.

A Book of Love, Philosophy, Sentiment and Humor. By OLIVER BUNCE. 1 vol. 12mo. Muslin. Price $1.

"THE SPICE OF NEW BOOKS."

"'A Bachelor's Story' is equal to, in many particulars, Ik Marvel's 'Reveries;' and while, without being at all an imitation of that work, is more or less a reverie. Such a reverie, indeed, as any thoughtful man, buried for the winter in the country, would be likely to have over his blazing wood fire, and with a little Maggie by his side. We prophesy that the book will find a welcome wherever it goes; and no summer traveler to the watering places or mountain resorts will be en regle without a copy of the 'Bachelor's Story.'"

THE ROMANCE OF A
POOR YOUNG MAN.
BY OCTAVE FEUILLET.

Translated from the Seventh Paris Edition by Henry J. Macdonald, (late of Corpus Christi College, Oxford.) One volume. 12mo. muslin. Price $1.

A HANDSOME LIBRARY EDITION.

From the New-York Tribune.

"'The Romance of a Poor Young Man' has recently appeared in Paris, and has been hailed by both French and English critics as perhaps the most striking and admirable work of fiction that appeared in any country during the year 1858. Indeed, since 'Jane Eyre' startled the novel-reading world, we hardly remember another production of the kind which, for beauty and interest, can be compared with this."

DICKENS' NEW PUBLICATION.
THE RICHEST MONTHLY MAGAZINE IN THE WORLD.

The first monthly part of "ALL THE YEAR ROUND" is now ready. It contains the whole of the first four weekly parts, including the entire first book of Dickens' new novel "A Tale of Two Cities," which is now exciting more universal and intense interest throughout Europe and America than any other literary production. Besides the novel, this number contains thirty-two interesting original papers, furnished by the most brilliant and distinguished writers of Europe. Those who have neglected to secure the weekly parts should not let this opportunity pass of obtaining the monthly. Take it home with you to night. The Lawrence Sentinel, of Mass., says: "Parents could not put books into the hands of their boys and girls that would give them so much instruction in so pleasant a way as 'All the Year Round.' The scientific articles are especially entertaining—at once thoroughly philosophical and yet so fascinating as fiction. Nothing equal to them, in their peculiar line, has ever appeared in any other magazine. In the department of poetry and fiction the standard is very high, yet not above the level of the million."

The fifth weekly part of "All the Year Round" is also now ready.

HEADS AND TAILS FOR THE WISE AND WAGGISH.
A new American Edition, with alterations and Additions.
1 vol. 12mo. $1 25.

In THE TIN TRUMPET, the melancholy Jacques and the motley Touchstone go hand in hand together. "Chunks of Wisdom" are cased with the "Wagery" of wit—making it a book to be gravely consulted for instruction, or leisurely turned over for entertainment, with equal relish. Abounding in the food of "sweet and bitter fancy," it is a volume that, nibble at it as often as you may, there will still be found a wholesome and agreeable morsel left. You may read it through in a day, but it will last your thoughtfulness a lifetime.

LEGAL NOTICES.

MORTGAGE SALE.—WHEREAS DEFAULT has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid in and by a certain indenture of mortgage executed and delivered to the Ilion Bank (an association duly organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New-York) at Ilion, in the County of Herkimer, mortgagees, by Adam W. [illegible], Junior, and Margaret Ann his wife, of the City and County of New-York, mortgagors, bearing date July 1, 1855, and recorded in the office of the Register of the City and County of New-York in liber 565 of Mortgages, page 391, on the 31st day of January, 1856, and whereas there is claimed to be due and payable upon said mortgage, at the date of the first publication of this notice, to wit: on the 18th day of May, 1859, the sum of three thousand six hundred and ninety-seven dollars and twenty-nine cents, ($3,697 29,) and whereas no suit or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the said debt secured by the said mortgage or any part thereof:

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that in pursuance of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and recorded therewith, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the mortgaged premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, and hereinafter described, will be sold at public auction or vendue at the City Hall, in the City of New-York, on the 23d day of August, 1859, at 12 o'clock M. of that day. The said premises are described in said mortgage as follows, to-wit: all the equal undivided sixth part of the houses and premises situate on Ludlow, Stanton and Orchard sts., and certain indentures of lease of said premises upon which said houses are situated, viz: Lot number forty-two (42) bounded easterly by Ludlow-st., northerly by lot number forty-four (44), southerly by lot number forty-one and westerly by lot number fourteen, in the Xth Ward of the City of New-York. Also lot number forty-one in said Ward, bounded southeasterly in front by Ludlow-st., southwesterly on one side by Stanton-st., and north-westerly in rear by lot number thirteen, and northeasterly on the other side by lot number forty-two, containing in front and rear on each side twenty-five feet, and in depth on each side seventy-five feet. Also lots number thirteen and fourteen (13 and 14) in said Ward, which together are bounded westerly in front by Orchard-st., northerly in part by lot number fifteen and in part by lot number forty-three, easterly in rear by lots numbers forty-one and forty-two, and southerly by Stanton-st.; each of said lots containing in width in front and rear twenty-five, and in depth on each side one hundred feet, and the lot numbers being taken from a map or chart annexed to a deed of partition and release recorded in the office of the Register of the City and County of New-York, in liber 329 of Conveyances, on page 70. Also, lot known and designated as lot number one hundred and forty-eight (148) on the map of partition among the children of Judith Winthrop, deceased, of certain lands in the XIth and XVIIth Wards of said City of New-York, said lot being in said XVIIth Ward, and bounded as follows: Beginning at a point on the easterly side of Orchard-st., distant fifty feet northeasterly from the northeasterly corner of Orchard and Stanton sts., thence running northeasterly along the easterly side of Orchard-st., twenty-five feet six inches, thence southeasterly eighty-seven feet nine inches; thence southwesterly, parallel with Orchard-street, twenty-five feet ten inches; thence northwesterly eighty-seven feet nine inches, to the place of beginning. For a further description of the premises and interests hereby conveyed, reference may be had to the last will and testament of Peter Pinckney, deceased, duly proved and recorded in the records of the City and County of New-York, and the settlement of the said estate thereunder. Also to a deed or assignment of leases given by Margaret Pinckney and others, executors of said will, to Margaret Ann aforesaid and others, bearing date July 10, 1850, and recorded in the office of the Register of the City and County of New-York in liber 556 of Conveyances, page 416, Nov. 20, 1850, subject nevertheless to the amount unpaid on a prior incumbrance by mortgage to James Morgan, given for fifteen hundred dollars.—Dated MAY 24, 1859.

HYATT'S PATENT LIGHTS.
A CARD HAVING BEEN ISSUED TO THE PUBLIC

By parties who frankly confess that they do not pay me for my invention, I avail myself of this opportunity to advertise the names of those who do. The following persons only, are licensed under my patents in this City:

George R. Jackson & Co.
J. B. & W. W. Cornell & Co.
S. B. Althause & Co.
Ingalls & Case.
Theodore Hyatt.

The law is that a person who purchases or uses a patented article is equally liable for infringement with the maker of it. The "makers" having fairly notified the "users" of their intention not to pay, the "users" have only themselves to blame if I collect my tariff of them—as I shall certainly do. THADDEUS HYATT.

BILLIARDS.

CAUTION TO PURCHASERS OF BILLIARD TABLES.

As unscrupulous persons in this City are endeavoring to palm off their imitations of my tables on the public, falsely asserting that a decision has been obtained affecting the patent for my Combination Cushions, I take this opportunity of stating that no decision affecting any of my patents has ever been rendered, and informing the public, pending the measures taken to put an end to infringements of the outward form of my cushions, that O'CONNOR & COLLENDER, of [illegible] Crosby-st., in this City, are the sole [illegible] my billiard tables and combination cushions.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

HEALTH COMMISSIONERS.—The Health Commissioners met yesterday at the usual time and place; Mayor TIEMANN President, CONNELL, Drs. GUNN, ROCKWELL, MILLER and BOYD being present. The brigs Grenada and Reindeer, both from Rio Janeiro, the former in 46 and the latter in 40 days, reported that the health of that port was improving. They were ordered to remain below for five days. GEORGE [illegible] petitioned for the removal of a nuisance on the northwest corner of Fourteenth-street and Sixth-avenue. Referred to the Superintendent of Sanitary Inspection with power. JOHN WHITE asked for the abatement of a nuisance, No. 224 Ninth-street. Referred to Dr. MILLER, with power. MICHAEL BURKE and others called attention again to the slaughter-house No. 216 Mott-street. Mr. CONNELL stated that a new floor, which would put a stop to the annoyance, had been ordered. C. W. CHITTENDEN complained of a nuisance in front of No. 86 Oak-street. Referred to the Superintendent of Sanitary Inspection. Mrs. ELIZABETH TRAVER complained of the slaughter house No. 174 East Twenty-eighth-street. Referred to Dr. ROCKWELL and Mr. CONNELL, with power. The Trustees of the School of the Reformed Dutch Church called for the abatement of the nuisance No. 185 Fourth-street, adjoining the school building. Referred to the Superintendent of Sanitary Inspection. On motion of Dr. GUNN, Dr. E. C. MUNDY, Health Officer of Stapleton, Staten Island, was invited to attend the meetings of the Board for the present season. Reports from various Policemen stated that the work of cleaning the streets was progressing satisfactorily. Adjourned to Monday noon.

THE AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY.—The stated meeting of the Managers was held at the Bible House, Astor-place, on Thursday, the 2d inst., at 4½ P. M., the Hon. LUTHER BRADISH in the Chair. Five new auxiliaries were recognized, one in each of the States of Connecticut, Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois, and California. Communications were received from WM. WRIGHTSON, Esq., Tubac, Arizona, acknowledging the receipt of books granted by this Society; from Lieutenant HILL, of U. S. A., in Utah, in regard to books left there by Mr. VAN EMMON, and stating a willingness on the part of several officers in the army to attend to them; from the Rev. Messrs. DAMON and CLARK, Honolulu, with an order for additional supplies of the Hawaiian and English Testament, and stating the increasing demand in the Sandwich Islands, both among natives and foreigners. Grants were made to the Massachusetts S. S. Union; to the Presbyterian Board of Missions, for the Navy-Yard in Pensacola; to the Agent of the Methodist Book Concern at Pittsburgh; Mpongwe Scriptures to A. B. C. F. Missions; books in Portuguese, French and German, for Brazil; to the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, for distribution at Greytown and in St. Domingo; books in English, Spanish and Portuguese, for seamen at Providence, R. I.; 276 Testaments in various languages, for distribution by captains of vessels in foreign parts; books in English and German, for depository at Smyrna; with 12 volumes for the blind, and many of smaller amount. A grant in money of $2,500 was made for printing the Modern Syriac Testament in Ooroomiah.

THE SAILING OF THE REV. J. G. INSKIP.—The Rev. J. G. INSKIP, Pastor of the Seamen's Methodist Episcopal Church, Cherry-street, and his lady, sailed for Europe yesterday in the ship Isaac Webb. They were accompanied down the Bay and some 15 miles below Sandy Hook, by a large number of friends. While passing down the Bay a meeting was organized on the call of THOS. H. MARSHALL, Esq., by the appointment of Mr. ABRAHAM BROWER Chairman, and Mr. WM. LE COUNT Secretary. Resolutions were reported by a Committee consisting of Messrs. HUME, GALLAGHER and COZINE, and adopted, thanking Capt. HUTCHINSON and officers, for their kindness in permitting the friends of Mr. and Mrs. INSKIP to accompany them down the Bay, and expressive of the best of wishes for all. A liberal repast was furnished by the Captain, which was enjoyed by all, and then, with many prayers for a safe voyage, the accompanying party returned on board the steamer, to the City. As the steamer left the slip, a number of hearty cheers were given and returned. The object of the voyage is the recovery of Mrs. INSKIP, whose health has been delicate for some time.

FOR CALIFORNIA.—The United States Mail steamer Moses Taylor, Captain JOHN McGOWAN, will leave on Monday, June 6, for Aspinwall, with the California mails and passengers. On the following day, Tuesday, the 7th, the steamer Granada, Captain J. MAURY, of the same line, also leaves with a portion of the passengers. The reason for dispatching two steamers is because of the large number going out, but to accommodate those which are expected to arrive by the down steamer, John L. Stephens, on the other side. The precautions which have always been adopted by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, to have one or more extra steamers lying at Panama ready for use, is a sure guaranty against any possible detention.

SAILING OF MISSIONARIES.—The Rev. A. P. HAPPER, M. D., wife and four children, sailed yesterday in the ship Samuel Russell, for Hong Kong, China. Dr. HAPPER returns to his field of labor, at Canton, as a Missionary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. He is accompanied by a young Chinaman, TSANG APAN, formerly a pupil in the boys' boarding-school in Canton, under charge of Dr. HAPPER, and who, after a most thorough and satisfactory examination by the Session of the Jersey City First Presbyterian Church, was received into membership, and on Sabbath evening, May 29, was publicly admitted and baptized.

THE ALTA CALIFORNIA TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—Messrs. WILLIAM E. LOVETT, of California, and A. A. LOVETT, of New-York, (General Superintendent of the American Telegraph Company,) have purchased of the patentees the exclusive rights for using the Hughes Printing Telegraph, the House Printing Telegraph, and the new Combination Printing Telegraph patents for the entire State of California. Mr. W. E. LOVETT sails for California on the 20th of this month, and it is expected that these improved systems of telegraphing will be introduced upon the lines of the Alta California Telegraph Company, between San Francisco, Sacramento and Marysville, at the earliest possible moment.

ESCAPE OF TWO BLACKWELL'S ISLAND CONVICTS—ONE OF THEM DROWNED.—Two Blackwell's Island convicts availed themselves of an opportunity to jump into the East River and swim for the New-York shore. One of them reached the New-York side, but his companion was drowned. Yesterday the escaped one, whose name is JOHN GALLAGHER, was rearrested and sent back to his old quarters. The name of the one who was drowned has not yet been ascertained. GALLAGHER says he was an Englishman, a tailor, and unmarried; that he formerly lived in North Moore-street, and that he was sent to the Island for robbing the trunk of a fellow-workman.

TRIAL TRIP OF THE LONG ISLAND.—The river steamer Long Island, built by EDWARD LUPTON, for the Glen Cove route, made her engineer's trip yesterday, with great satisfaction to all concerned. She was not put to her full test of speed, there being some finish yet to put upon her engine and wheels; but in her fine model, shown in her smooth movement through the water, and the power of her engine, (from the Novelty Works,) she gave promise of great speed when completed. She will be finished and ready for her route in a few days.

CHILD KILLED BY GIVING IT THE WRONG MEDICINE.—An infant child of THOMAS LOUGHEY, who resides at No. 330 West Nineteenth-street, was killed yesterday by its mother giving it solution of morphine in mistake for anise cordial. An inquest was held on the body, and a verdict rendered accordingly.

FIRE IN CHERRY-STREET.—A slight fire occurred at 6 A. M. yesterday, in the basement of the dwelling-house corner of Cherry and Pike streets. It was extinguished with trifling damage. The fire originated from some coal-ashes in the cellar.

A SAILOR KILLED.—HENRY DORCHE, a sailor, died yesterday afternoon at the City Hospital, from injuries received by falling into the area of No. 90 Oliver-street. An inquest will be held on the body to-day.

Police Reports.

THE CHARGE OF LARCENY AGAINST OFFICER COOK.—Justice BRENNAN, yesterday, dismissed the charge of larceny preferred against Officer Cook, of the Twenty-first Precinct, by Annie Ellison, the complainant failing to appear. Cook was called upon to arrest Miss Ellison for being drunk, and the latter charged him with stealing from her neck her diamond necklace, with $125. Cook, upon being told that he would be prosecuted for theft, is said to have threatened that, if he was arrested, the girl should never get her necklace again. He was arrested however, and retained Gen. Tallmadge, as his counsel, the complainant retaining Gen. Nye. A few days since a notice appeared under the "Personal" of a City paper, that Miss E. would find her necklace in a pawn-shop in First-avenue. She went there, and recovered the jewelry, it having been pawned for fifty cents. It was intimated that the recovery of the necklace, and other considerations, induced Miss Ellison to keep out of Court. It did not transpire who pawned the necklace.

ARREST OF DESPERATE THIEVES.—Officer Bennett, of the Fourteenth Ward, about 3 o'clock Thursday morning, observed two thieves in the act of robbing a man, who was lying asleep upon a stoop in Elizabeth-street. Giving an alarm rap, the officer attempted to arrest the thieves, but they escaped and ran in opposite directions. Officer Borst, having heard the rap, and seeing the parties running, started in pursuit of one, while Bennett pursued the other. Borst soon captured his man, and took him to the Station-house. As Officer Bennett was close upon the heels of his man, the latter turned and attempted to shoot him with a revolver, but the weapon fortunately missed fire. The fugitive increased his speed, but was soon, however, brought to a stand-still by receiving a ball in the calf of his right leg, from a revolver fired by the officer. The prisoners, who gave their names as William Simpson and James Mangin, were committed to the Tombs for trial.

MR. BRADLEY AGAIN.—Two Germans, giving their names as Henry Bender and Benjamin Fessenden, and residing in Philadelphia, made complaint Thursday, before Justice WELSH, against John Bright, who keeps the [illegible] Hotel in Cedar-street. The complainants told the old story of having been compelled to pay nearly fifty per cent. more than the stated agreed price. A runner met the complainants at the Railroad depot and told them they could "put up" at the Empire for $1 a day, and the same statement was made to them subsequently by the bar keeper on the premises of Mr. Enright—a card on the wall, stating the charge to be $1 50 a day, being declared to be an old one. The magistrate said he could do nothing for the complainants, as no express statute had been violated by the accused.

ALLEGED ATTEMPT TO KILL AN OLD MAN.—John Farrell, a young man, was arrested on Thursday on charge of committing a felonious assault upon Russell J. Greene, an old man, living at No. 130 West Twenty-second-street. Franklin W. Greene, a son of the injured man, made an affidavit before Justice QUACKENBUSH, upon which the accused was arrested. Young Greene declares in his affidavit that his father rebuked Farrell for something he had been doing, and that the latter thereupon assaulted his father in the most brutal manner, and ended by hurling a heavy stone and hitting him in the left temple, from which he lay insensible nearly three hours and is still confined to his bed with only slight hope of recovery. Justice QUACKENBUSH committed the accused to await the result of Mr. Greene's injuries.

YOUTHS BUYING SUMMER CLOTHING.—Four boys, their ages varying from nine to fifteen, were discovered yesterday by an officer, in a clothing store, fitting themselves up in fine style. The officer thought the boys had too much money for honest youths, and arrested them. They became frightened, and confessed that they had just robbed the jewelry store of Mr. Nichol, No. 144 Third-avenue, of $66 in gold and bills. Mr. Nichol had already notified the Police of the robbery. The boys, who gave their names as John Murphy, Daniel Moran, James McCoy and George Kiets, were sent by Justice CONNOLLY to the Juvenile Asylum.

COUNTERFEIT BILLS.—Yesterday afternoon a well-dressed gentleman called at the store No. 54 Beekman-street, made a trifling purchase, and offered in payment a counterfeit $20 bill on the Market Bank. The bill was not taken, but the man was, and given in charge of an officer. Some time ago the same man passed a similar counterfeit at the same store, and he was recognized at once. He was taken before Justice WELSH and committed for trial. He gave his name as Wm. H. Schreiner.

ABSCONDING CLERK.—Otto Hohback, a young German, who was clerk and book-keeper in the Hotel St. Germain, corner of Fifth-avenue and Twenty-second-street, absconded on Tuesday, the 24th ult., with about $400 of his employer's money. He is a young man being only 22 years of age, and has been about eight months in the place. A reward is offered for his arrest.

A THIEVING ROOMMATE.—James Powelson, a young man, was arrested yesterday, for stealing nearly $30 in silver coin from the trunk of James Price who occupied the same room with him at No. 155 West Twenty-ninth-street. The accused confessed the robbery, restored the money, and was committed for trial by Justice QUACKENBUSH.

Commissioners of Police.

THE HARBOR LAWS TO BE ENFORCED—THE OLD POLICE ABOUT TO REPORT AGAIN FOR DUTY.

The usual weekly secret meeting was held yesterday afternoon.

The Clerk of the Board furnished the following information:

The resignations of Lewis Roth, Third Precinct, George L. Hall, Twentieth Precinct, and Jacob Kirchoff, Fourth Precinct, were received and accepted.

A communication was received from the Pilot Commissioners, calling the attention of the Commission*ers of Police to the numerous violations of the laws* relating to the Harbor; and a resolution was adopted to the effect that all violations that may hereafter come under the notice of the Police shall be reported to the proper authorities.

Mayor TIEMANN informed the reporters that Commissioner STRANAHAN had asked for the appointment of two more patrolmen in Brooklyn, and that he (the Mayor) and Commissioners ULSHOEFFER and BAILEY had opposed the request, on the ground that the question of the Old Police should be definitely settled before any more new appointments were made. The request of Mr. STRANAHAN was not granted.

No reply has been received from Captain Pilsbury respecting his appointment as General Superintendent.

It is rumored that a large number of the Old Police force will present themselves to-day at the headquarters, ready to waive all claims for back pay, and ready for duty.

Board of Councilmen.

STREET CLEANING—NEW TOMPKINS MARKET—CONDITION OF PIERS AND SLIPS.

The Board met on Thursday evening at the usual hour.

Messrs. Charles Johnson and Henry A. Sayer sent in a communication offering to clean all paved streets, alleys, &c., for five years, for $300,000 per annum. Referred to the Special Committee on Cleaning Streets.

An invitation to review the Eleventh Regiment on the 15th inst., was received and accepted.

Councilman LENT offered a resolution directing the Croton Aqueduct to report the locality of wells and pumps in the City, and how they are covered. Adopted.

J. W. Benedict, one of the sureties for Theodore Hunt, contractor for building the new Tompkins Market, sent in a communication objecting to having the additional work on the structure divided up among various contractors, and offering to take the whole himself as follows: iron work, $38,450; mason's and carpenter's, $12,000; water-proof floor, $4,700. Referred to Committee on Repairs and Supplies.

Messrs. Wattermere and Conover offered to repair all the roads on Manhattan Island and to keep them in the most perfect order, for $50,000 per annum for five years. Referred to Committee on Roads.

The deputy and acting Street Commissioner, Mr. Lovell, sent in a communication stating that the Comptroller had informed him that he had been obliged to allow claims for [illegible] on certain piers and slips on account of their bad condition. He asked for authority to advertise for proposals for repairing and dredging where it might be necessary. Referred to Committee on Wharves, Piers and Slips.

The report of the Committee on Wharves, Piers and Slips in favor of concurring to authorize the City Inspector to advertise for proposals for removing the night soil of the City.

A resolution was adopted to make the necessary alterations and repairs in the office of the Clerk of the Board.

After the transaction of some unimportant routine business the Board adjourned.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

BROOKLYN ORPHAN ASYLUM.—This institution is located on Cumberland-street, near Myrtle-avenue, in one of the most pleasant and healthy sections of the city, and is managed exclusively by ladies. During the last year 150 children here found a home. At the present time, however, there are only 117 inmates, the others having been furnished with good homes in families where they will be properly cared for. The receipts for the year amounted to $9,496 36. All of this, with the exception of $743, was expended, but only $1,335 42 of the sum was used for salaries and wages.

INTEREST ON A LEGACY.—In 1856 PATRICK LENNON died, leaving his widow $7,000 in lieu of dower. Upon settling the estate the legatee demanded interest on the amount from the date of her husband's death—no other provision having been made for her support, and the legacy was expressly declared to be in lieu of dower. The case was contested by the executors. Yesterday Surrogate BRAINARD decided that the widow was entitled to the interest as claimed, and an order to that effect was made.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—An elderly man, supposed to be insane, attempted to commit suicide yesterday by jumping into Gowanus Creek, near the Penny Bridge. He was rescued by some anglers, and was taken in charge by the Eighth Precinct Police.

DROWNED.—GEORGE DAVIS, rigger, of New-York, was drowned on Wednesday last, near the Montague Ferry, while attempting to get upon the wharf from a ship. The body was recovered yesterday, when an inquest was held by Coroner HORTON. Deceased leaves a family in New-York.

Aldermanic Bribery in Brooklyn.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Under the head of "Brooklyn Intelligence," in the TIMES of the 1st instant, I noticed a charge made by JAMES DILLON against THOMAS SHEPHERD, for an attempt to bribe Alderman DAYTON, of the Eleventh Ward of said City, by offering the sum of $500 as an inducement to award to said SHEPHERD the contract for cleaning the streets of said Ward.

Judging from the filthy condition of most of the streets of Brooklyn, one is led to suspect on reading the foregoing charge, that possibly there may be other Wards where similar attempts at bribery may not only have been made, but may also have proved successful.

When an Alderman, on being urged by citizens to withhold payment from a contractor unless he keep the streets clean, begins to make excuses for the contractor, it looks very much as if the alderman were in the pay and power of that contractor, and this form of corruption, appearing now to becoming systematic, it is time that citizens should hold their aldermen to strict accountability in the discharge of their trusts. The bribery system may also account for the fact that it is not always he who offers to clean the streets for the lowest sum that gets the contract. He who will give the largest share to the alderman becomes the favored individual. The result of such collusion is to be seen in the increasing filth of our streets, which are yearly getting to be worse and worse. The evil complained of would be bad enough if it went no further than swindling taxpayers out of their money under false pretences; but when the comfort, health and lives of citizens are sacrificed under the system, all are interested in having it brought to an end, and as the first step in that direction is exposure, it is to be hoped that others may follow the example of JAMES DILLON.

BROOKLYN.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.—The United States storeship Relief, Commander ROGER PERRY, arrived at this port yesterday from Aspinwall, which port she left April 23, stopping at Key West, and leaving that port May 22. The following is a list of officers: Commander, ROGER PERRY. Lieuts. W. B. Fitzgerald, D. Amedermut, Jas. S. Thornton. Surgeon, B. Rush Mitchel. Purser, Jas. Fulton. Captain's Clerk, H. Golder.

THE IVORYTYPE.—GURNEY'S NEW PHOTOGRAPHIC AND FINE-ART GALLERY, No. 707 Broadway, contains more to deserve attention than the mere beauty of the Portraits there exhibited. It presents a new and remarkable improvement in the art Photographic. GURNEY here exhibits his Ivorytype Portraits, which would appear to be the perfection of sun-painting. It is impossible to imagine anything more natural, more beautiful, or more highly finished than the Pictures done in this new style. If you can conceive the finest miniature Painting on ivory by the most skillful artist, so perfectly painted as to have no appearance of paint on the closest inspection, and rendered by some abstruse art so perfectly like flesh as to resemble the human face seen through a diminishing glass, you may form some idea of the Ivorytype. The question, if any existed, as to the superiority of European or American Photographic Portraits, must, we imagine, be definitely settled by the Ivorytype which GURNEY has just introduced.—Extract from Daily Times, April 14, 1859.

COMMON SENSE AND COMMON PRUDENCE—Both dictate the necessity of our providing against a sudden suspension of our lives. Irrespective of whatever value we may choose to place upon our existence, we should recollect that God gave them to us to be preserved, if not for our personal pleasure, at least for the happiness and advantage of those who look to us for support, and who regard us with affection. No other argument is required to urge the adoption by travelers, bathers, yachters, boating people, &c., of the choice garments sold by the Delano Life Preserving Coat and Vest Co., No. 256 Broadway. These embody the safest, surest, and most convenient preventive of death by drowning ever invented. Bathing garments ready for ladies and children.

FALSE DELICACY REPROVED.—False delicacy has at last given way to prudential self-preservation. The parties who originally thought—or said they thought—the introduction to the public of GAYETTY'S Medicated Paper indelicate, now use said paper constantly, and would not be without it. It is already a general necessity. All travelers are purchasing it to take away with them, and the proprietors of a majority of the watering-place hotels have made arrangements to keep it for sale in their offices during the Summer and Fall seasons. GAYETTY'S name is watermarked in each sheet of the genuine. Sold at the dépôt No. 41 Ann-street, and by all respectable druggists, grocers and fancy goods dealers, etc.

THE GREAT ADMIRAL.—This mammoth ship has attracted almost—not quite—as much attention as KNOX'S Summer Hat. While the first astonishes by its size, the latter excites by its beauty. The former is destined for a foreign market—the latter is intended for home use; and there is a slight difference in the price of the two articles—for KNOX will persist in selling his beautiful fabrics at the low sum of $4. Call at his store, No. 212 Broadway, and make your purchase.

TEAS.—The Canton Tea Company have on hand every variety of Teas for Grocers and Tea-dealers and private families. Souchong, Oolong and Young Hyson from 25c. to 40c. Gunpowder and Imperial from 35c. to 80c. All other qualities equally low. Also, 5-lb. boxes good Family Tea for $2. Call and examine, at No. 125 Chatham-street, between Pearl and Roosevelt streets.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.—If you wish to see this drama surpassingly well performed, see little CORDELIA HOWARD as Eva, her mother in the character of Topsey, and her father as St. Clair. Then you will see inimitable acting. Uncle Tom is presented by them this afternoon and evening at Barnum's Museum.

FRIDAY, June 3—P. M.

The Foreign Exchanges for the mails to-morrow closed somewhat tame this afternoon, at 110@110⅛ at 60 days, and 110¼ at sight, on London. The demand to-day has disappointed some of the leading drawers, which is accounted for, in part, by the fact that a number of the Continental firms, Importers and Bankers, will again ship Specie on their own account. We hear, at the last hour, that about $300,000 has been added to the previous engagement of $1,600,000. Of the $2,800,000 sent to Europe this week on New-York account, (including $850,000 sent to Boston by Express,) we estimate $200,000 in Silver from the South; $800,000 in Gold, by Express and other channels from the country; $500,000 from the Sub-Treasury, and about $1,300,000 taken from the Banks. We are aware that the decrease on the next Bank average is estimated in some quarters at more than double this apparent difference—in some instances as high as $3,000,000@$4,000,000—but at present we know of no reason to justify such extreme calculations. The demand for Money to-day we find rather moderate from their regular dealers, at most of the Banks. There are one or two exceptions in the large Banks in Wall-street. The disposition continues to refuse long-date bills, except at the advanced rates, 7@9 ₩ cent., but we still hear of some very choice 45@60 day acceptances being done at 6 ₩ cent. The Stock Brokers continue to be very moderate borrowers on demand, at 5@6 ₩ cent.; most of the lenders demanding 6 ₩ cent. The Sub-Treasury received, to-day, $216,093, of which $64,000 for Customs, and paid out $154,035; balance this afternoon, $4,314,107.

The mails by the America at Boston will be delivered at our Post-office early to-morrow. The further details by telegraph announce that short discounts have fallen in London to 3@4 ₩ cent. per annum, being ½@1 ₩ cent. below the Bank minimum of 4½ ₩ cent., and that Cotton Goods have advanced in India. In American Stocks the changes are not important.

The Stock Market to-day has been dull, influenced in part by the easier deliveries of New York Central shares, which constitute the staple of the share speculation, and partly by the failure in Philadelphia of an old and prominent member of the Exchange in that City, who of late has been a heavy buyer of Reading. The failure creates considerable surprise, as there is no worthier or more respectably connected member of the Philadelphia Board than the party in question. The Reading shares fell in consequence below 40 ₩ cent. this afternoon, but subsequently closed about that figure. The dealings in the stock of late in this market have been unusually light, most of the certificates heretofore in circulation among the New-York Brokers having been drawn to the Philadelphia market. New-York Central ranged through the day 72⅝@⅞ for the cash stock, the same as at the close yesterday, and the latest quotation this afternoon stands 72⅞ ₩ cent. The Western Stocks are steady, with only a moderate movement. Panama shares are higher on advice by the America that the English Government is about to advertise for a steamship mail to Australia by this route. The understood determination of Mr. VANDERBILT to prosecute with energy his competition in the California trade via Panama also has its influence in favor of Panama shares, while keeping unsettled the shares of the Pacific Mail Company. The latter, after selling down to 71 ₩ cent., closed 71½ ₩ cent. In State Stocks, the short sellers, on the Specie movement and the War agitation abroad, continue to put out fresh contracts in Missouris at 83@83⅛ seller's option, while the cash stock is steady at 84⅛ ₩ cent. Tennessees continue in request at 90⅛@90¼ ₩ cent. Illinois Central Bonds are 79⅛ ₩ cent. cash, and 78 seller 60 days. In other Railway Bonds there was little done. The general market this afternoon closed dull.

The La Crosse Road.

From the New-York Tribune.

The purchasers of the La Crosse and Milwaukee Road, organized under the title of the Milwaukee and Minnesota Railroad Company, and the Hon. RUSSELL SAGE, of Troy, was elected President. A year is allowed for the redemption of the road. The stockholders met on the 25th, the day for the annual election of Directors, and there was more than usual discussion and consultation as to whether the election should go on; the question was argued before the Inspectors, by the counsels of the new Company and NEWCOMBE CLEVELAND, till past the hour when the polls should have closed. The election was, however, held; the Cleveland ticket receiving 27,500 votes, and another ticket 500. Victory seemed to be with CLEVELAND, but the old Board refused to recognize the new one, because they had been elected by a minority of the stocks, because the election had not commenced till after the time when the polls should have been closed, and because seven of those elected were not stockholders, CLEVELAND and CASSIN alone owning stock. A majority of those on the ticket which received the 500 votes, on seeing the condition of the Cleveland ticket, met and organized, by electing DANIEL WELLS, Jr., for President. CLEVELAND, although President of the other Board, attended this meeting, and was appointed on the Executive Committee. There are, then, four Boards—Board No. 1 is the old Board, of which STAUNTON is President, and which does not recognize either of the new ones; Board No. 2, of which CLEVELAND is President, only two of the members of which are stockholders; Board No. 3, which received 500 votes, of which DANIEL WELLS, Jr., is President; and Board No. 4, of which SAGE is President. ALEX. MITCHELL, who held proxies for $3,000,000 of stock, did not use them, because he considered the case as hopeless for the unfortunate stockholders. S. CHAMBERLAIN continues to run the road. The Milwaukee and Minnesota Company expect to make a satisfactory settlement with CHAMBERLAIN, who, it is reported, has bought out CLEVELAND'S judgment against the road.

Real Estate.....THURSDAY, May 31.

The Sheriff sold under the bill called [illegible] [illegible] streets; but the entire front on Thirtieth-street appears to be cut off, and the lots are numbered up to "sixty." We do not understand it, and, as it is useless to ask for explanations, all we can say is that the "fifty-one" or "sixty" lots were all sold together to JOHN ACKEY for $30,000.

There was another "peremptory" sale of a dozen Havemeyer lots on Eighth and Ninth avenues, and on Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth streets. If we do not report them, it is because we doubt whether they were "peremptorily" sold.

Messrs. RAYNOR & BLACKWELL have sold a piece of land on Broadway, Sixty-ninth-street and Tenth-avenue, bounded as follows: 186 feet fronting Broadway, 130 feet fronting Sixty-ninth-street, and 125 feet fronting Tenth avenue, and 77 feet in depth on the north line; on the premises are some six two-story buildings. Sold for $23,000.

THURSDAY, June 2.

By order of PHILO T. RUGGLES, Esq., Referee, in the suit of JORDAN MOTT and others, against GARRETT STRIKER and others, the following property was sold:

One lot on the northeast corner of Tenth-avenue and Fifty-third street. JAMES E. SHAW, $1,600.

Next adjoining on the avenue. THOMAS GARRETT, $1,150. Next not sold.

The next five, including the imperfect corner of Fifty-fourth-street. Same buyer, $625 each.

The first five street lots in the rear of above, each having an extra depth of about 80 feet. JAMES E. SHAW, $1,230 each.

The next with an extra depth of about 40 feet. JOHN COSTELLO, $1,160.

The next two lots with about 65 feet extra depth. D. SCHOONMAKER, $1,020 each.

Five lots northside Fifty-second-street, 100 feet east of Tenth-avenue. ARCHIBALD HALL, $730 each—struck down at $735.

Five lots south side of Fifty-third-street, 100 feet east of Tenth-avenue. JOHN H. POWER, $640 each.

One lot on the northeast corner of Fifty-first-street and Tenth-avenue. JAS. E. SHAW, $2,075.

The next adjoining not sold.

The next two. C. J. FAGAN, $1,550 each.

The next three. J. E. SHAW, $1,350 each.

The corner adjoining Fifty-second street. Same $1,700.

The lot on the northeast corner of Fifty-fourth street and Eleventh-avenue. THOS. CASSIN, $1,560.

The next, $1,060; the next $925. Same.

One lot on the northwest corner of Fifty-third-street and Tenth-avenue. SHAW, $1,600. The next, $1,225. Next three, $1,175 each; all, SHAW. Next two not sold. The corner of Fifty-fourth street, HENRY SNECKNER, $1,660.

The first street lot in the rear, on the north side of Fifty-third-street, JOHN KELLY, $650. The next, EMMETT, $580. Next, same, $425, but apparently has no front, though nearly full size.

The first three street lots in rear of above, south side of Fifty fourth-street. EMMETT, $750 each. The next three, same, $710, $700, and $700. The next seven, MARTIN, $690 each.

The lot on the southeast corner of Fifty-fourth-street and Eleventh-avenue, MATTHEW ALLEN, $1,025. The next, same, $625. The next, WM. MATTESON, $760. Next, SOUTHMAYD, $700.

The first two street lots south side Fifty-fourth-street, in rear of above, SOUTHMAYD, $510 each. The next, EMERSON, $510. The next, same, $460.
